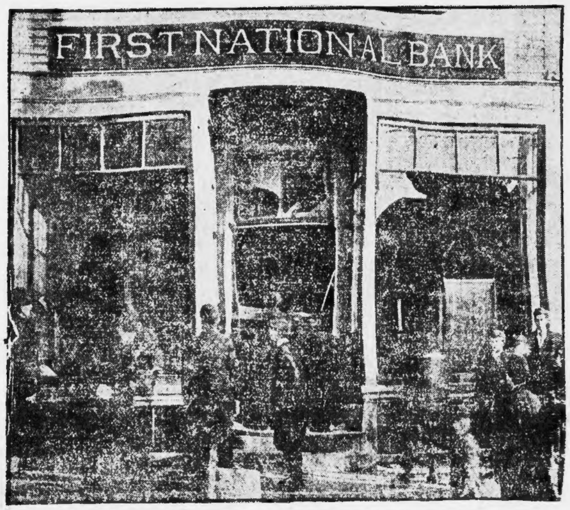
TRAIL ROBBERS TO BOSTON



Exterior view of the wrecked bank at Pepperell. From photographs taken to-day expressly for the Boston American.

Men Who Blew Up Bank Safe and Stole $16,000 in Pepperell Believed to Have Reached Hub With Loot.

The daring burglars who broke into the First National Bank at Pepperell, a town about forty miles northwest of Boston, shortly before daylight, blew open the safe with three charges of nitro-glycerine, got $16,800 in cash, and made good their escape in a large Stanley automobile, are believed to have reached Boston and are in hiding in this city.

The police of Boston were notified early to-day of the big robbery, and they are on the lookout for the three men who made the successful haul. The police had found traces of the burglars in Dunstable this afternoon, and when last seen they were whirling Bostonward at fifty miles an hour. They could easily have reached this city before daylight.

Doors of Town Wired.

The burglars had taken the precautions to fasten the doors of many of the houses in the neighborhood of the bank with wire so that when the alarm was given several men had to leap from windows to reach the street. Ernest R. Tarbell is the only man who saw the robbers. He has given to the police the best description he could.

One of the men is short and thick set. He was dressed in dark clothing and has a smooth face. The other two men are large and were dressed in dark clothing. It is believed that the trio had a confederate in Ayer who was left out of the attack and who tried to give the bank officials warning of the burglary.

Told Cashier of Break.

Chief Tarbell said to-day that he had learned that some one in Ayer called up

ENGINEER ON FATAL TRAIN ARRESTED FOR SOUTH BOSTON CRASH

THOMAS WHICHER, WHOSE MOGUL RAMMED REAR CAR, HELD BY POLICE.

Charged with the murder of the two men who met their death in the New Haven railroad rear-end collision near the South station, last Saturday evening, Thomas Whicher, the engineer of the second train, was to-day placed under arrest. He was taken to police headquarters and later locked up at police station 6, South Boston. He will be arraigned in the South Boston Police Court to-morrow forenoon.

The arrest of Whicher was the result of the investigation made by the police under instructions from Acting District Attorney Dwyer. Detectives from the Bureau of Criminal Investigation were assigned to the case by Captain Dugan. Upon the facts that they ascertained Judge Fallon, in the South Boston Court, granted the warrant for the engineer's arrest.

The warrant was placed in the hands of Hazlett and to-day he took the engineer into custody at the South Station. The railroad authorities declared that they did not know of the arrest until they were told by a reporter of the BOSTON AMERICAN. In the warrant Whicher is charged with responsibility for the death of the two men by running past danger signals.

Dispute Over Signal.

An investigation of the wreck is still on by the railroad authorities at the South Station. The question for determination was whether Whicher ran by a red danger signal or whether the signalman had failed to set the signal. The police claim that the engineer ran past the signal.

Superintendent of the Boston division, Albert W. Martin, was surprised when told of the arrest of Whicher.

"I can make no statement," he said, "as yet so far as the railroad is concerned on fixing responsibility for Saturday's accident. Our investigation is still on. We have two witnesses to hear this afternoon and they are important witnesses. I have an opinion as to who was responsible for the accident, but am not yet ready to charge anybody with the responsibility for the accident.

Engineer Under Suspension.

"Engineer Whicher is under suspension, but has not been discharged from the employ of the road. The railroad has given the police every assistance in its power, and upon the completion to-day of our investigation, which has been thorough, will fix responsibility for the wreck."

Whicher is about forty years of age, is unmarried and lives at No. 40 Dwight street, this city. He claims that he saw no danger signal. He has been employed by the New Haven railroad for thirteen years.

NEW ELECTRIC LINE PUT IN OPERATION

ROCHESTER, N. H., Dec. 2.—The branch of the Dover, Somersworth and Rochester street railway, which has been under construction between this city and East Rochester, is now open to the public. The building of the road was commenced in the latter part of August, under the supervision of A. B. Leighton. The company has been granted the privilege and will charge a six-cent fare over this part of its new line.

MAYO MEN HOLD 4TH BALL TO-NIGHT

The fourth annual ball of the Mayo Men's Benevolent Association will be held to-night in Paul Revere and Talbot halls. Invitations have been extended to the Mayo men of New York and Philadelphia, and delegations from both organizations will be present. Martin J. Sheridan, the champion amateur athlete of the world and a member of the New York Mayo Men's Association, is expected. John Flynn will head the reception committee. The ball will be in charge of President Joseph J. Thornton, assisted by Patrick F. Hastings, J. J. McAndrew, Hugh Rafferty, John Ruddy, Joseph J. O'Toole, Peter L. O'Toole, P. H. Brogan, Patrick McLaughlin and M. J. Needham.

REPUBLICANS HOPE TO ELECT 7 ALDERMEN

To Centre Strength on Slate and Ask Four Candidates to Withdraw.

The Republican city machine leaders in Boston are to-day endeavoring to arrange a plan by which they hope to elect a majority of next year's Board of Aldermen. This is the programme:

Centre all strength on an Aldermanic slate of seven.

Withdraw those candidates not on the slate whose names begin with letters near the first of the alphabet.

Substitute candidates whose names begin with letters near the end of the alphabet.

Persuade those candidates not on the slate to tell their friends not to vote for them, but to support the slate.

Hope for the success of this plan is added by the announcement that there will be two Democratic aldermanic slates, one supported by the Donovan-Doyle force and the other by the Fitzgerald-Lomasney combine.

These are the aldermanic candidates whom the Republican leaders seek to elect: Alderman George P. Anderson of Ward 10, Alderman Walter Ballantyne of Ward 17, Alderman Frederick J. Brand of Ward 20, Alderman W. Dudley Cotton of Ward 22, Charles L. Carr of Ward 24, Matthew Hale of Ward 11, and either Nathan E. Bates of East Boston or August Beneks of South Boston.

These are the candidates whom the leaders are to-day trying to withdraw: John A. Ackley of Roxbury, Charles W. Alden of Charlestown, former Alderman Charles H. Bryant of Roxbury and either Bates or Beneks if the other is placed on the machine slate. Aldermanic candidates are placed on the ballot in alphabetical succession. No party may have "regular" aldermanic candidates unless a full ticket of thirteen is nominated, according to Chairman Minton of the Election Board.

The last time for withdrawals is at 5 p. m. to-day. The choice between Bates and Beneks will depend largely on the Good Government Association. If neither is given the G. G. A. indorsement, neither may be placed on the Republican slate, it was said to-day. The six Republicans already on the slate have the G. G. A. indorsement. At least one Democrat, J. Frank O'Hare, of South Boston, is also expected to be indorsed.

LOST 142 POUNDS IN 22-DAY FAST

MARIETTA, O., Dec. 2.—McKee Richmond, a vaudeville actor of New York, last night ended a twenty-two-day fast here, started in Toronto, reducing his weight from 250 pounds to 108.

SIBLEY IN OIL TRUST ARCHBOLD'S ADMISSION

EX-CONGRESSMAN EXPOSED BY W. R. HIRST MANAGER OF SIGNAL COMPANY.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Writhing under an incessant fire of cross-questions by Prosecutor Kellogg in the Oil Trust suit to-day, John D. Archbold was forced to admit that former Congressman Joseph C. Sibley is manager of the Signal Oil Company, a concern absorbed by the Standard to annihilate competition.

This testimony caused an immense surprise, and the Oil Trust lawyers appeared visibly annoyed. The letters of Archbold to Sibley urging him as Congressman to kill "pernicious legislation," were read in the Presidential campaign by William Randolph Hearst and stirred the whole nation, but it was not suspected till to-day that Sibley was a trust official.

Trying Day for Archbold.

This was a decidedly trying day for Archbold. Each instance of the taking over of independent plants was thoroughly aired by Kellogg in an attempt to prove that Standard Oil had adopted such measures to do away with menacing competition and not from the motive of improvement to adequately handle a steadily increasing business.

Mr. Archbold's memory is growing more and more elusive, a fact which served him well in parrying the direct thrusts of Attorney Kellogg.

Mentioning various firms that were snapped up, the witness stated that the Signal Company, engaged in the manufacture of signal and lubricating oils, had been a rival of the Standard.

Sibley Still Manager.

It was acquired in 1879 and was organized by Standard Oil interests with the Galena Oil Company.

"Who was the manager of the Signal company?" asked the prosecutor.

"Mr. Joseph C. Sibley," responded Mr. Archbold. Witness stated that the Standard merged the Signal and Galena companies under the old managers, Joseph C. Sibley and Charles Miller.

"Are they still the managers?" asked the prosecutor, and the witness replied: "They are."

Mr. Archbold resorted to abject and unequivocal ignorance. When he was asked when the Standard bought the Globe Oil Company, he replied that he did not know. Asked what percentage of the oil business the Standard controlled in 1888 he said he could not tell.

Avoids Clever Trap.

The prosecutor then dived into the records and brought forth a transcript of testimony delivered by Mr. Archbold in which he swore that the Standard controlled about 85 per cent. of the oil trade in 1879.

Mr. Kellogg was attempting to get the witness to commit himself as to what was the percentage of the Standard's business now, but Archbold saw the trap before it was sprung and avoided it.

With the close of each day becomes more and more apparent that the Department of Justice sets less store on the ultimate success of the dissolution suit than on the hope of a formidable criminal prosecution of officials for alleged violations of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Over the objection of Attorney Rosenthal, the witness was required to read in the record from his testimony before the Industrial Commission in 1898, showing the percentage of the domestic business done by the Standard Oil Company from 1894 to 1898. This testimony showed the gradual increase from 81.4 per cent. in 1894 to 83.7 in 1898.

Stereotyped Replies.

"Assuming that your company in 1894 did 81.4 per cent. of the domestic business, why did you acquire the refineries you testified to having taken over in 95?" asked Attorney Kellogg.

Attorney Rosenthal interrupted to inquire what refineries were meant.

"The International, Mutual Oil, Worn, Schwartz and National," replied the prosecutor, and the defence noted an objection.

Mr. Archbold reiterated the stereotyped words, "For the extension of our business wherever possible."

Referring to mysterious absorption of the Payne, Atley & Company and Irish & Company refineries by the Standard Oil Company, Attorney Kellogg could not refresh the witness' memory concerning the distribution of the stock.

That counsel for the defence is growing impatient at the incessant grilling of their client was evidenced several times by the interruption of the interrogations in an effort to emasculate the inadvertent admissions of Mr. Archbold.

One by one Mr. Kellogg took up the specific instances of absorption testified to previously and endeavored to show the transaction was actuated by the motive to restrain competition and not to extend facilities for the care of a constantly growing industry.

CHURCH PRAYERS TO STAY EPIDEMIC

READING, Pa., Dec. 2.—Sixty-eight additional cases of typhoid fever have been reported since Monday, making a total of 420. Several physicians have been deputized by the local Board of Health to make an inspection of the city to ascertain the cases which exist and are not yet reported to a physician. Prayers for the staying of the epidemic will be offered in the churches on Sunday.

HAYTIAN CAPITAL IN REVOLT AGAINST ALEXIS

OVERTHROWS PRESENT REGIME AND SETS UP NEW GOVERNMENT.

Special Cable to Boston American.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Dec. 2.—Port-au-Prince revolted against the government of President Nord Alexis.

The people have seized the city and established a provisional government, with General Legitime as the temporary President.

Plans for to-day's coup were laid last night and to-day the men who planned the overthrow moved quietly about the city and took possession of the various vantage points. General Canal, a Senator, was the prime mover of the scheme. Not a shot was fired in the execution of the bold plan.

The central police station and all the police outposts, the arsenal and the port are controlled by the citizens.

A public committee of safety has been organized, and its purpose is to see that no disorder follows the change. Any attempt at rioting will be summarily dealt with.

A meeting of the members of the diplomatic corps and leaders of the revolt is being held to agree on what disposition to make of Nord Alexis. It is believed that he will be sent out of the country as quickly as possible and forced to remain in exile until his presence in the city will not have a disquieting effect. General Camille Gabriel, Alexis's nephew, is the only one who is standing by him in his overthrow. He is now at the palace with the dethroned executive.

Nord Alexis became President of Hayti in 1902, and his term would have ended next year. He is ninety-two years old.

Bolder spirits, filled with a spirit of vandalism rioted in the streets last night, breaking into buildings and looting stores.

General Nord Alexis is still convinced he can resist, and to-day he threatened that if the worst comes to the worst he will blow out his brains on the ruins of the Palace, which he says he will destroy.

It is thought that General Simon will enter Port-au-Prince probably without striking a blow, and, it may be, without causing disturbance in the order of things, if President Nord Alexis takes his departure from the city before the arrival of the enemy.

President Nord Alexis has convoked an immediate meeting of Senate and Congress, but as many members cannot be reached before weeks, in consequence of the state of the country, nobody knows when the extraordinary session may take place.

Supplementary to the fair to be held at the Vendome on November 6 by the Boston Young Women's Christian Association, a sale will be held for the benefit of the association at No. 40 Berkeley street on Dec. 9.

COURTHOUSE CONTRACT IS OVERRULED

Commission Finds Award to Connors Brothers Was Not Justified.

COURT ACTION TO FOLLOW

A verdict that the award of the contract for enlarging the Court House in Pemberton Square to the Conners Brothers' Construction Company of Boston and Lowell was not justified was rendered to-day by the special commission investigating, consisting of Governor Guild, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court Knowlton and Mayor Hibbard of Boston.

The contract was awarded to the Conners Company by the commission, of which James R. Dunbar is chairman.

The Conners Company bid $692,345, or $20,000 more than that of the lowest bidder, the E. T. Nesbit Company of Buffalo. The Nesbit Company appealed to the courts, the special commission was appointed to find out the facts, hearings were held at the State House, and to-day the verdict was made public. In this the special commission of inquiry says:

"We do not find the corporation E. T. Nesbit & Co. so inferior or the Conners Bros.' Company so superior as to justify the award of the contract for the enlargement and alterations for the Suffolk County Court House to the latter at an extra cost of over $20,000."

The Commission is thus overruled, and if it is possible legally the Conners contract will be set aside and the Nesbit Company allowed to do the work.

PICKPOCKETS AT WORK IN TUNNEL

Pickpockets are already trying to "work" the new Washington street tunnel. The first case of an attempt at picking pockets in the tunnel came up before Judge Sullivan in Boston Municipal Court to-day. Inspector Joe Knox of headquarters was the complainant against John Flaherty, twenty-five years old. According to Knox's brief story, Flaherty grabbed at a woman's purse in Boylston street station and Knox grabbed Flaherty. Judge Sullivan gave Flaherty six months.

"If Any One

ever had that tired feeling I had it.

"My health and strength were all run-down, and I was so tired that it was not mere physical weakness but a prostration of the whole system.

"I was tired of life and thought I was a burden to those about me.

"I suffered often from rheumatism so that I had to walk with a cane, and was also very dizzy at times.

"I worried too about my condition, and had frequent nervous spells.

"My attention was called to Hood's Sarsaparilla by a kind friend, so I got a bottle, and before I had taken it all I knew it was doing me good. So I continued and soon felt so much better I seemed an entirely different person.

"When I commenced taking the medicine I weighed 124 pounds. Now I weigh 174 and I owe my present good health and my vigorous strength to Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I recommend it not only as a good blood and spring medicine, but as an all the year round medicine. I always keep it in the house." Mrs. Mary C. Cryderman, Lafontaine, Kansas.

Hood's Sarsaparilla effects its wonderful cures, not simply because it contains sarsaparilla, but because it combines the utmost remedial values of more than 20 different ingredients, each greatly strengthened and enriched by this peculiar combination. There is no real substitute for it. If urged to buy any preparation said to be "just as good" you may be sure it is inferior, costs less to make, and yields the dealer a larger profit.

Begin taking Hood's Sarsaparilla today. In usual liquid form or in chocolated tablets known as Sarsatabs. 100 doses $1.

'L' CHARGED WITH STOCK WATERING PLOT

J. T. Auerbach Opposes New $6,650,000 of Issue by Road at 110.

TOO CHEAP, HE DECLARES

At the hearing before the Railroad Commissioners to-day on the petition of the Boston Elevated Railroad Company for permission to issue $6,650,000 more stock at $110 a share, opposition was made by Junius T. Auerbach and J. B. Eastman, secretary of the Public Franchise League to the price that the stockholders had set for the shares.

Mr. Auerbach contended that to sell the shares at $110 in view of the present market price was practically making a present of $6 per share to every purchaser and was really stock watering.

He urged the board to stick to the high standard set in the case of the Worcester & Leominster road and get a price on the new stock that would ensure protection to and not a burden on the public.

Eastman Urges Care.

Mr. Eastman did not attempt to discuss the question of whether or not $110 was a just price for the stock, but he urged the board to go slow and consider carefully before deciding at what price the stock should be sold. He thought that 120 would be a fair price for the stock.

At the opening of the hearing Frank S. Snow, counsel for the Elevated, stated that the purpose of the new issue of stock was to meet the expenses of the subway to be built to Cambridge and the East Cambridge extension of the Elevated.

Estimated Cost of Subways.

Mr. Kimball, engineer of the Boston Elevated, told the board that he estimated the cost of the Main street subway to be $6,150,000, and the cost of what is known as the East Cambridge extension would be $4,430,000.

Mr. Snow stated to the board that the Boston Elevated at the present time had no special fund which could be drawn upon for the construction of this subway, as the extension of the elevated structure to Forest Hills had practically eaten up all that might have been available.

Mr. Auerbach said he did not think that companies should have the right to set the price of new stock to be issued to the public.

Means Watered Stocks.

"The stockholders are being over induced to take this stock," he said, "because I think it is issued too low. This means a watering to the extent of about 13,000 shares on which the public must pay interest.

"I contend that not the directors of this board should set the price of this new stock and that price should be based on what the stock would be worth with the improvements contemplated. The stock will sell much higher than it does to-day.

"At this price it seems to me that the present practically given to the purchasers of the stock is five or six dollars a share. We know that all will not be bought by the present stock holders but largely by syndicates that will make that profit out of the public at large.

Worcester Road Case.

"It seems that the action in this case should be similar to that taken by the board in the case of the railroad up in Worcester County."

Mr. Snow took exception to the statement of Mr. Auerbach, that the Boston Elevated stock would sell at a much higher price than yet quoted.

"In five years," he said, "the Boston Elevated will have to get from the public $18,000,000 for improvements. New subways do not increase the profits, but rather decrease the revenue from the same routes when the latter were operated in the old way.

"I feel that 110 is the price at which the railroad can feel sure that the public will take the stock."

The hearing then closed.

FORMER ARLINGTON POLICE CHIEF DEAD

Ex-Chief of Police A. S. Harriman of Arlington died this morning at 6:30. Alonzo S. Harriman was one of the best-known men in police circles in this State. When a young man he joined the Cambridge force, and for nineteen years he was connected with the department there, working his way up to the rank of Inspector. There was some trouble in that city in the early 90s, and Inspector Harriman resigned. He then secured a position with the Boston Elevated, investigating accident claims. In 1894, while in Arlington, he was introduced to one of the Selectmen, and shortly after he was chosen chief of police here, resigning the office January 1, 1905.

Mary MacLane, Famous Writer, Joins Staff of the American.

Miss Mary MacLane. From a photograph by Purdy, Boston.

Mary MacLane has become a newspaper woman. She has joined the staff of the BOSTON AMERICAN, which include her special articles among its numerous other features.

Since Miss MacLane, then living in Butte, Mont., acquired fame and fortune several years ago by publishing in book form a series of remarkable essays under the title of "The Story of Mary MacLane," she has made her home in the East, continuing her literary work by contributing to the magazines. The announcement that she has been prevailed upon to take up daily journalism is one certain to be received with great popular interest. Her addition to the corps of special writers on the BOSTON AMERICAN is another instance of this newspaper's activity in giving to its readers those features which go to make a newspaper of distinction.

Mary MacLane's versatility is unquestioned. The originality of her thought, the quaintness of her philosophy and the sparkling, if somewhat unconventional, style of her expression, have been broadened by travel and polished by contact with thinking men and women. Consequently, anything she may write for the BOSTON AMERICAN will be found well worth the moments spent in reading.

The topics of her observations will be varied. She will write of music and drama, of the new books, of the day's events, and of the men and women who may be holding the public attention. Surely this is a sufficiently wide field for the exercising of Mary MacLane's assorted talents!

You may not always agree with Mary MacLane's views of life in general; often her standpoints may be regarded as radical and daring, but it must be conceded that she is at all times entertaining. What she has to say she says as no one else could say it. Much of her charm as a writer lies in her singular ability to treat of old topics in a new way.

Mary MacLane is nothing if not original. Given a subject as old as the Sphinx, Mary MacLane is sure to find something new in it, certain to approach it from an angle hitherto undiscovered, and certain to present it with variations of her own fascinating to the reader.

FINED $15 FOR THEFT OF CENT

Harry Rubinsky was fined $15 in Boston Municipal Court to-day for stealing one cent.

Rubinsky, a twenty-year-old chap from the South End, was down in the market district late yesterday afternoon. He slid one hand into an intoxicated man's pocket for any money he could find, snatched his hand out and bolted. He was caught after a short sprint by a policeman. In Rubinsky's closed fist was found a cent. He pleaded guilty before Judge Bolster to-day, and, after the fine was imposed, sent out for friends to raise the money for him.

TO RESUME TREMONT STREET CAR ROUTE

Commencing to-morrow all the Tremont street lines which have been diverted to Columbus avenue on account of work on the Stony Brook culvert will resume their regular routes on Tremont street, including the South and West Ends and the Roxbury Crossing and South Boston lines.

GOOD FOR ONE VOTE

Boston American BALLOT EUROPEAN TOUR VOTE 1

NAME.................................

ADDRESS.................................

SUNDAY SCHOOL.................................

Special Ballot Easy Way To Boom Your Favorite

TO THE CANDIDATES.

Voting for this week in the European Tour contest will close at 1:30 p. m, on Friday.

No votes intended to be included in the Sunday standing will be accepted after that hour.

One SPECIAL BALLOT representing 3,000 votes, is GIVEN AWAY with every subscription of thirty weeks to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Call up the European Tour Editor by telephone, or write him, and ask about the details of the contest.

SPECIAL BALLOTS now rule the day in the BOSTON AMERICAN Free European Tour Contest for Sunday School teachers of Boston and suburbs.

Nearly all the voting thus far this week has been by special ballot, and a major part of the voting will continue that way until the contest ends. The SPECIAL BALLOT method is the popular method of voting for all the candidates, and likewise friends of ALL THE CANDIDATES.

The latest contestant to enter the race is Miss Carrie L. Wallace of Humboldt avenue, Boston, a popular young teacher in the Bowdoin Square Tabernacle. She starts in District No. 9 with 2,000 votes and assurances of the solid support of a wide coterie of friends.

Noticeable gain was made in the contest yesterday by Miss Mary E. Edwards of St. Bernard's Church, West Newton; Miss C. E. Lawler of Maplewood Baptist Church; Miss Margaret Yeomans of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, Beachmont, and Miss Mary G. Dieselman of St. John's Church, Cambridge.

To-day probably is one of the biggest days of the week in the voting. Hundreds of SPECIAL BALLOTS and thousands of regular ballots will be cast before evening.

There is still plenty of time to enter the contest.

THE BEGINNING OF THE END IS NOT YET IN SIGHT, and it may be that the new candidates who enter to-day will be those who will win the GRAND TOURS.

How about YOUR favorite teacher?

Why not cast a SPECIAL BALLOT for her to-day and help her along in the race with 3,000 EXTRA votes? The only thing necessary to do this is to send a subscription of thirty weeks to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN, through the European Tour Department.

Surely that's easy enough!

TRY IT!

MORGAN QUIETLY CAME AND WENT

J. Pierpont Morgan came, saw a little of Boston and conquered to the extent of getting away without it becoming known that he was in Boston except a few when he made a flying trip to this city to be the special guest of the exclusive Tavern Club in its quaint quarters on Boylston place.

Mr. Morgan's intimate, personal and business friends did not know of his trip to this city.

Mr. Morgan arrived in Boston shortly after 5 o'clock and went to the Vendome, where he remained until the time to leave for the dinner arrived. From the dinner he went direct to the station and then to New York.

CROWN CHINA'S INFANT RULER

PEKIN, Dec. 2.—The coronation of Pu Yi, the three-year-old Emperor of China, the successor to the late Kuang Hsu, took place at the imperial palace to-day. The new ruler was given the name of Hsuen Tung.

The event lacked the brilliancy of former coronations, owing to the recent deaths of Kuang Hsu and the Dowager Empress, but it was not lacking in color and spectacular features.

DR. BULL WORSE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Dr. Gerardus H. Wynckoop, who is attending Dr. William T. Bull, to-day gave out a statement saying that Dr. Bull's condition is critical.

GOULD SHARES LEAD MARKET

By T. C. Shotwell.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Rock Island and the Gould issues were the features of trading in Wall street to-day. The former group moved because of final arrangements which are being made to take care of the Frisco in accordance with the pool agreement made several months ago. The strength of the Gould shares are beginning at last to respond to the manipulation that has been in progress for several weeks. It was aided to-day by a report from Chicago that the Texas & Pacific would be used by the Goulds as a holding company for the stocks of all their railroads. New high records were made in both groups of stock affected.

Gold to the amount of $1,500,000 was engaged for export. Silver metal touched a new low record for this movement in London when it sold at 22d.⅝ an ounce. In spite of this, the silver stocks on the curb held fairly steady. Nipissing was traded in around 10½ and Larose at 6⅜. Goldfield Consolidated was the strong feature on the outside market.

The general market was strong throughout the early trading. Reactions were only nominal. In London American shares improved materially after the New York opening.

HELD IN $2,500 FOR ROBBERY

Charged with being one of the gang that robbed John M. McDonald of South Boston of $50 on June 2 last, on the Commonwealth flats, Thomas Balasky, twenty-three, of No. 175 Fifth street, was held in $2,500 for the Grand Jury by Judge Fallon in the South Boston District Court to-day.

On the day of the robbery McDonald, who is over sixty years old, was returning to his home after drawing the money from the bank. He was set upon and robbed.

On July 29 Patrick J. Cook of Dresser street, who was found guilty as one of the assailants of McDonald, was sentenced to five years in the Concord Reformatory.

Balasky to-day denied his guilt. McDonald took the stand, identified him as one of his assailants and told the story of the robbery.

MARY MacLANE SEES "THE THIRD DEGREE"

Famous Woman Writer Gives Her Impressions of Mr. Klein's Play at the Hollis for Boston American Readers.

By MARY MACLANE.

I WENT to a new play at the Hollis Street Theatre Monday night, and I will tell you about it.

But let me say in the first place that I care mighty little for anything theatrical, save and except vaudeville, the gay, the seductive, and those very mellow and dramatic melodramatic plays they do in the Eighth avenue theatres in New York—"She's More to Be Pitied Than Scorned," and the my-God-I'm-shot kind—Laura Jean Libbey and Nick Carter all in one.

But, even if a play bores you, you can still talk about it, if only to tell how and why it bores you. "The Third Degree" did not bore me in the least, but neither did it fascinate me. It is a real Charles Klein play, but it does not by any means come up to "The Music Master" in appeal to one's emotions and grip on one's mind. "The Music Master" is the only other play by Mr. Klein that I've seen, and I had looked for something as big as that in "The Third Degree." So I was disappointed in it. It suffers by the comparison both as literature and dramatically—though that may be because there are no Warfields in the cast.

Considerably in His Cups.

I arrived at the theatre in the middle of the first scene. When I got to my seat the footlights revealed a light-haired young chap, considerably in his cups, telling his troubles and trying to borrow any sum, from two hundred to two thousand dollars, from a friend who hadn't got it. The light-haired chap's interpretation of a young man in his cups was extremely good. I looked on my programme to identify him, and the programme yielded up the name Wallace Eddinger.

I groped in my mind's archives and the name found a faint response there. I remembered seeing about a dozen years ago a portrait, in that department in Munsey's Magazine called "The Stage," of a little fellow of about eight or so, with long yellow hair, in a military sort of suit and cap, and with, I think, a drum—and the picture was labelled "Wallie Eddinger." He had already gone on the stage at that early age, and if one's to judge by his work in "The Third Degree," it didn't hurt him.

Mr. Eddinger's interpretation of young Howard Jeffries, the weak and futile hero of the play, is the most artistic bit of work in the piece.

There's but one thrill for the lookeron in the whole play, and that's in the brief scene of the first act, where the heavy police captain is putting young Jeffries through the third degree for the supposed murder of Underwood—the friend he had failed to "touch" in the preceding scene.

Mr. Eddinger is there really fine, and, as I say, he makes the one brain-thrilling moment in the play. The lines are particularly good there, but even so a less effective actor would have failed to score at that point.

The strongest work—and the only acting that had any fascination for me—was done by Helen Ware as Annie Jeffries, the futile young fellow's wife. She is somewhat less artistic, though a stronger, actor than Mr. Eddinger, but she has the magnetic personality and the charm of manner which are the actor's invaluable asset.

Not a Father—a Fish.

Miss Ware makes the hit of the piece, not merely because she has the one big part in it, but because she's got it in her. The Annie Jeffries role is a splendid opportunity for an actor like her. (I hate the word actress—it's almost as bad as authoress.) It's a vital part, played by a live woman.

Miss Ware did by far the best hysterical sobbing I've ever seen done on any stage, and her facial expressions are positively real. She uses her lips, her eyes, her shoulders and her hands, not just with her lines, but in them. How I'd like to see that young woman in vaudeville, at Hammerstein's, or Keith's! She could hand out the funny things. It would be worth paying much good money to see.

Some of the lines in the Annie Jeffries character are almost vaudevillian—and they alone were enough to come out on a wet night for. One of them was, "My God! The milk's boiling over!" And another: "He's not a father—he's a fish-sh!"

And there was another, almost worthy of the Eighth avenue type of melodrama. It's where she begins one sentence with "Honest to God."

I straightened up in the smooth leather seat, with satisfaction, when I heard that "honest to God."

Annie Jeffries is the daughter of a barkeeper, or a saloonkeeper, or something, and she had worked in a factory and in a restaurant—and that's where the delightful little swear-words come in.

Factory girls frequently begin sentences with "honest to God," or something equally so. Mr. Klein knew his type. One false note he struck in making Annie Jeffries—and that's her talk, ever and anon, about not being a "lady."

She says something about her young husband marrying her and "trying to make a lady of her," and "I know I'm not a lady." Those phrases are very much out of date—they belong to that period when the Grecian Bend was fashionable, and "St. Elmo," by Augusta Evans, was a brand new book. Anybody's a lady now—anybody, that is, who's fool enough to want to be.

You'll never hear a factory girl—of no matter how sane and sensible a sort, like Annie Jeffries—admitting she's not a "lady." They're all too apt to go about admitting—if not boasting—that they are.

"Oh, Splash!"

So, it amounts to this, that even if you don't care for plays, Helen Ware's depicting of Annie Jeffries is worth all the money you must pay to see it.

The whole cast is remarkably good. There are no very bad actors in it, though there are one or two ineffective ones.

Mr. Edmund Breese, as the Lawyer Brewster, the leading male character in the play, did his work with an unemotional intellectual cleverness that fitted the part and kept the drop curtain moving at the end of the acts. But the role does not give him great opportunities. However, an actor like Mr. Breese does not need them.

The glad and graceful Directoire gowns and long Nemo corsets (or were they Thompson's glove-fitting?) which tripped on and off the stage with a lady inside of them in the character of Mrs. Howard Jeffries was the most interesting thing in the plot, if you ask me.

The Directoire gown portraiture of mental anguish left the spectator cold and quiet as a clam, and the long Nemo corset brand of fear and horror elicited no response from the front.

My own sole mental response to it was the exclamation, "Oh, splash!"

Mr. Ralph Delmore, as Captain Clinton of the police, was one of the best. He was the exact type, physically and mentally, of the bullying, grafting, black-headed police officer.

Delicate Incongruity.

How they ever get that physical type on the stage is a marvel and a mystery. It's not to be supposed that it is all in the make-up, when he is the type in every outward line.

Mr. Delmore showed himself a bit of an artist in detail, moreover—notably in a horrible little horseshoe pin of diamonds which he wore in his cravat. It was the last little captivating touch in him.

He had several lines which were funny in the vaudevilleish way, one of which filled me with mirth for a moment. After Richard Brewster, the lawyer, had finished trying to hammer it into him that he, the police captain, had illegally extorted the confession of murder from young Jeffries, he says: "You have treated me to a lecture on psychology, Mr. Brewster—for which I thank you very much."

"For which I thank you very much" being the height of biting irony according to the police captain's idea—was to me a delicious and delicate little incongruity, for which I thanked him very much.

The last act of the play is the least effective and leaves things rather at sixes and sevens. That's the one fault to be found—it dribbles out at the farther end. It leaves you unsoothed and unsatisfied.

But there you are. It's not vaudeville—so what the use?

AUSTRIA WILL CRUSH BOSNIA BY INVASION

VIENNA, Dec. 2.—Austria will flood the newly annexed province of Bosnia with an army of 100,000 men if the movement started to-day by the war party under the leadership of Prince Franz Ferdinand is successful.

The plan is to make a whirlwind campaign in Bosnia and stamp out the revolt against Austria's annexation. Arrangements are also being made to send a large army against Montenegro. The situation in Bosnia, Montenegro and Servia is so serious that the war leaders will not longer await action by other European powers. They are now considering the seizure of strategic points in Servia and Montenegro as a preliminary to an open campaign against these countries.

These warlike preparations are going on in the face of Emperor Franz Josef's determined stand for peace. The Emperor and Prince Ferdinand are in almost open conflict and the outcome depends on whether the aged Emperor will be able to hold out against his warlike nephew. There is no denial that the war party is now in the ascendency.

Its leaders consider the Emperor to have grown childish, and are disposed to ignore his demands. The Emperor and Ferdinand are reported to have had a violent personal altercation yesterday over the latter's pursuance of his war policy.

VIENNA, Dec. 2.—Six hundred people have been injured and probably a half dozen killed in the jam of nearly 2,000,000 people that is blockading the streets of Vienna to-day in honor of the sixtieth anniversary of Emperor Franz Josef's reign.

In some of the streets, particularly the Ring Strasse, the crowds are so dense that the people have been unable to move since early last evening.

MERRILL IS HELD IN $500 FOR HEARING

Winthrop M. Merrill, lawyer, tourist, sportsman and financier, was held in $500 for a hearing on Friday on a larceny charge by Judge Sullivan in the Municipal Court to-day. He was arraigned on two counts. The charge is that he wrongfully obtained $1,600 from Dominick Jarride of No. 175 Forrest street, Arlington.

Merrill is the son of Moody Merrill, once a great Boston street railway magnate and a Republican candidate for Mayor of this city. He is well known as an international rifle shot and holds the Wimbledon cup as individual long range champion of America.

Jarride is a bootblack with a stand in the rear of the Boston Tavern, and the complaint against Merrill followed the purchase by the other man several years ago of a house in Arlington. A prominent police official states, it is said, that although Merrill is accused of the larceny of $1,600, the most that the bootblack should name is about $175, which he claims to have paid the defendant as interest on a mortgage.

MEN ARE BARRED AT TUFTS GIRLS' PLAY

The senior coeds in the All Around Club at Tufts College gave their annual senior play, "Higgee of Harvard," in the Goddard gymnasium. The men are barred from the audience, 400 girls and their friends being present.

LEFT ALL TO WIFE NOW HELD FOR HIS DEATH

LYONS, N. Y., Dec. 2.—The will of Harry Sampson, whose young wife, Georgia Sampson, is now in the Lyons jail charged with having fired the shot that caused his death on November 1, was to-day offered for probate here.

It conveys the entire estate to Mrs. Sampson, showing the love and confidence in which Harry Sampson held his wife at the time the will was executed. The value of the estate is about $5,000.

GIRL GETS LICENSE TO WED.

Makum, Okla., Dec. 2.—Because James W. Tucker of Kiowa County was not old enough to wed without his father's consent, Miss Etta Perry made application to County Judge Todd and secured a license. Tucker is twenty years old and his bride eighteen. Tucker's father gave his consent and the marriage followed.

Spokes of the Hub.

The jury in the case of Samuel M. Porter against the town of Swampscott has returned a verdict of $150 for the plaintiff. This was an action to recover damages for flooding land with water caused by a culvert becoming clogged.

Former Police Sergeant Thomas E. Clark, fifty-seven years of age, of No. 335 East Eight street, South Boston, met death by strangulation while eating a late supper at his home.

Two more buildings of the Long Beach cottage settlement, Gloucester, were destroyed by fire and undoubtedly, the officials think, by incendiaries.

A score or more of passengers narrowly escaped serious injury when a Reservoir-Brookline Village car and a Roxbury Crossing car collided in Brookline Village at the junction of Washington and Boylston streets.

To prove their claim to one-half of a fortune, estimated to be between $50,000 and $100,000, William J. Milldrum and wife of Malden are now on the ocean bound for England.

After thirty-five years as a teacher in the Somerville public schools, Miss Anna M. Bates of the Prescott School has tendered her resignation and will end her duties January 1, 1909.

BLEW UP BANK GOT $16,000 IN CASH LOOT

the cashier of the bank last night and told him to look out for burglars.

An attempt is being made to-day to trace the author of this information. The police are canvassing the town also to see if three suspicious men have been seen here within the last few days.

The bank safe was blown to pieces and the front of the building wrecked as the result of three distinct blasts from nitroglycerine. Ernest R. Tarbell, who lives next door to the bank, heard the first report. He got up, realized that the bank was being robbed, got after the burglars just as they were leaping into the automobile and fired several shots at the fleeing men. He does not know whether or not he hit any one.

The automobile headed westward toward Groton. As a result of the remarkable robbery the police of the following places are particularly alert: Lowell, Nashua, N. H., Fitchburg, Ayer, Groton, Dunstable and Chelmsford.

Ernest Tarbell's Story.

Ernest R. Tarbell, who lives next door to the bank, and who surprised the burglars and took several shots at them as they were whirling away, said:

"I was awakened about 2 o'clock by a muffled report. It sounded near by, and the concussion shook the house in which we live. It occurred to me at once that burglars were in the bank.

"I got up and was jumping into my clothes when there was a second and third explosion, each following the other with a short interval. The second explosion was also muffled, but the third was sharp, clear and powerful.

"I got my revolver and went to the door, but found that the door had been fastened from the outside, and it took me some time to get outside. When I finally reached the street I saw three men hurrying into an automobile waiting for them, and in a moment they were dashing away at great speed.

Opened Fire on Men.

"I fired at the men when they were only about twenty-five feet from me, but don't know whether I hit any of them or not. Then I followed this shot with several others. We have examined the ground in the vicinity of where the men were when I shot, but can find no traces of blood. Of course, I might have hit some one and there be no traces in the street.

"By this time the town began to show signs of life. The shock and report of the nitro-glycerine and the reports of my pistol had been heard and residents began to open windows in the neighborhood and peer out.

"When they tried to get out of their doors they found them wired fast, just as the burglars had treated my doors.

"It only took a glance at the bank building to show that they had apparently accomplished their design. A large section of the front of the structure had been torn away and the big safe was blown open. Just as soon as I found that the robbers were getting away from me I got to a phone and called up the chief of police, George Gay Tarbell.

"I told him that the bank had been blown up and burglarized and that the robbers had escaped in a big automobile.

"Then I called George Tarbell, the cashier of the bank. It was not long until the police and the cashier and other citizens began to arrive on the scene. We found that the robbers had got away with practically all of the money the bank had—something like $14,000.

"There was an inner compartment of the safe which contained $3,200 in gold. Only one $10 gold piece was found missing. It is believed that the robbers found this too heavy to carry and left it behind purposely.

"It was pretty dark when I got up, and I do not believe that I could identify any of the men I saw. There are no night police here, and as the town was in bed and asleep the burglars had a pretty clear field.

"They would have got away without anyone seeing them perhaps if I had not been awakened."

Just a short time before, according to the Nashua, N. H., police, Cashier Tarbell was called up on the telephone and told: "They are going to blow up safes to-night in Pepperell and Ayer; better look out for yours." Then, it is said, the mysterious informant rang off.

Chief Tarbell of Pepperell at once started to the scene of the explosion, and when he could find no clew to the robbers he hastened to telephone to every town and city in a radius of fifty miles to be on the lookout.

Inhabitants Locked In

The whole town had been awakened by the different explosions, particularly the last, which shook the buildings around for a considerable distance. Hardly had the sound of the escaping automobile died to the southward than practically every able-bodied man and boy had rushed to the street and toward the bank.

Many of those living in the vicinity who might have prevented the escape of the burglars were foiled in their attempts to get out of their homes by the careful wiring of the doors showing how well the men had planned to wreck the safe, get the money and escape.

When Cashier Tarbell arrived he found that the whole interior of the place had been wrecked. The safe door was shattered and the safe itself was badly cracked.

He found that the robbers had taken all of the bills the safe had contained, about $14,000, but that they had left $3,200 in gold, or all but $10 of that amount which the safe had contained last evening when the bank was closed.

Three empty bottles which had contained nitroglycerine were found near the safe. Investigation showed that the robbers had entered the building by forcing the front door.

LEAVE WOOL DUTIES ALONE, CRIES WHITMAN

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 2.—William Whitman of Boston to-day appeared before the House Committee on Ways and Means and advocated the retention of the present tariff on wool. "We do not want any reduction on the tariff on wool," he said. "It is our chief raw material. The retention of the tariff on it will protect the American wool grower against foreign competitors. The security of the woolen industry means cheaper clothes and cheaper food for the American people."

"Stand pat" is the slogan of other wool-growers representing all sections of the country, who also appeared before the Ways and Means Committee to-day.

Their argument was that the industry is now in good condition and that the tax has not caused an undue increase in the cost of woolen manufactures.

W. E. Dana, of Avon, N. Y., reviewed the sheep industry for twenty years. When wool was on the free list, he said, the sheep were sent to the slaughter pen. Since 1897, when the present tariff bill was passed, the value of sheep owned in this country has increased from $65,000,000 to $231,000,000. The annual production of wool is 200,000,000 pounds. Seventy per cent. of the wool used by American mills is raised in this country.

Theodore Justice of Philadelphia appeared in behalf of the consumers and wool growers of the country and the Manufacturers' Club of Philadelphia. Clothing is no more expensive now, he said, than it was when wool was on the free list.

IMMEDIATE RELIEF.

From Coughs, Colds, Sore Throats and Hoarseness, by Using Hyomei

When you catch cold you want to get rid of it as quickly as you can. You don't want to lie around the house for a week swallowing nauseating drugs. You know when you do this that you are not only making your own life miserable, but are a nuisance to everyone about you.

Why not avoid all this; why not relieve your cold in five minutes; why not cure it over night? You can do it by using Hyomei, the sure and guaranteed cure for Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Catarrh, Bronchitis and Asthma.

Hyomei is medicated and antiseptic air; you breathe it into the lungs through a small pocket inhaler, and its soothing influences as it passes over the inflamed membrane of the respiratory tract, stops the mucous discharge, allays the inflammation, and the cold is cured. A complete Hyomei outfit costs $1.00, and Jaynes Drug Co. will refund your money if it fails to cure.

Husband and Wife Cured.

I had a bad form of catarrh. My left nostril was closed entirely. There was also a constant dripping of blood from the right. I only used Hyomei a little over two weeks, and am now cured. My husband was also cured of catarrh and lung trouble two years ago by Hyomei. —Mrs. Harry Obney, Alliance, Ohio.

MORE MILLS RESUME; BIG BOOM SPREADS

Railroads and Manufacturing Plants Put Big Forces Back at Work.

TRAFFIC ON THE INCREASE

New England's prosperity boom is rapidly spreading to all branches of manufacture.

Dispatches continue to tell of thousands of workers returning to factories, mills or foundries which have long been closed or which have been running on short time.

Here are some of the latest reports:

LAWRENCE—The Stanley Manufacturing Company's plant, a large machine shop here, is again running full time and full handed. During the past year only a comparatively few of the employes have been at work.

WAKEFIELD——The National Megaphone Company reports many special orders in addition to the regular business, which just at present is on the boom.

FITCHBURG—The Beoli Mills at West Fitchburg, the local branch of the American Woolen Company, is feeling the flow of the tide of prosperity, as the several hundred weavers employed here commenced this week to work three nights a week to meet the demands of increasing orders.

WATERVILLE, Me.—Work has been resumed in all departments of the Lockwood Cotton Mill.

NEW HAVEN—The traffic returns of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company for practically the whole of the month of November continue to reflect the general improvement of business throughout New England.

William F. Wharton, assistant secretary of the State under President Harrison, will be present. Among former councilmen who have accepted invitations are Andreas Blume, Henry Parkman, John R. Fitzpatrick, J. Otis Eddy, A. Spaulding Weld, J. Frank Holland, John H. Lee, Francis A. Strater, Major George F. H. Murray, Malcolm S. Greenough, James G. Freeman, Edward J. Hathorne and ex-Aldermen Thomas H. Devlin, Paul H. Kendricken and William J. Welch, Joseph O'Kane, clerk of the council, and former City Messenger Alvah Peters have also been invited.

DRAPER 37,500 VOTES BEHIND TAFT IN STATE

Official Figures On November Election Show Governor-Elect Was Cut at Polls.

ENMITY IN HIS OWN PARTY

William H. Taft	265,966
William J. Bryan	155,543
Thomas L. Hisgen	19,237
Eugene V. Debs	10,778

From official figures of Massachusetts vote in November election given out by Secretary of State Olin.

Secretary of State William M. Olin to-day gave out the official figures on the vote in Massachusetts at the November election. They show that Eben S. Draper ran behind Louis A. Frothingham, Secretary of State William M. Olin, State Treasurer Chapin and State Auditor Turner, while Attorney-General Malone lacked less than 2,000 votes to equal that for the head of the State ticket. Among politicians to-day the Draper vote was the subject of much comment, as showing the opposition to the Governor-elect in his own party.

Draper received 228,318 votes, or 37,548 less than Taft, through Presidential Elector John L. Bates. Draper's vote was 12,048 less than Louis A. Frothingham, candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, whose vote leads the State ticket, 9,077 votes less than received by Secretary of State Olin, 8,979 less than received by State Treasurer Chapin and 2,473 less than State Auditor Turner.

The official Presidential vote in the State as given the first of the Presidential electors at large in each party is: Taft, 265, 966; Bryan, 155, 543; Hisgen, 19, 237; Debs, 10, 778; Chapin (Prohibition), 4, 373; Gilhaus (Socialist Labor), 1, 11.

Official Vote in State.

The official vote in the State for Governor and Lieutenant-Governor is as follows:

NEW SUBMARINE SHOW FOR GREAT WINTER GARDEN

Prof. Socho Will Illustrate Wonders of Deep in Big Glass Tank.

Preparations are being made in the great Winter Garden for Professor Socho's water show, illustrating deep-sea diving, using a mammoth glass tank and full diving apparatus in which men descend to the bottom and employ themselves exactly after the manner of those who rescue bodies and treasure from ships that have sunk at sea.

Air is pumped to them and the whole is in plain sight of the audiences, the tank being illuminated by electricity showing every detail.

During the week also the Iggorote village will be installed at the great Winter Garden with thirty-five natives of the Philippines. Each week the Iggorotes will give their fantastic sun dances, war dances, with an occasional dog festival and at least one sure-enough wedding, to be held between two members of the tribe who were engaged early this season.

The unicycle-trapeze-high-wire performance of Dephil and West goes on in the open twice daily, one of the most sensational park acts ever witnessed. Manager Suttee has also arranged for other free spectacles of a sensational nature to open some day this week.

The Sunday American Outing Club, with free tickets for the Great Winter Garden, are attending in large numbers. Other free tickets are to be published in Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN for use on Monday and Tuesday of next week.

Telegraph Briefs

LAWRENCE—The trial of the case of Miss Helen K. Stanley, who seeks to recover $20,000 from Dr. George L. Black, former city physician, for breach of promise to marry, was opened in the Superior Court.

DANGOR—Chief of Police M. H. Grady of Peabody and Officer Cahill of the Lynn Police Department are in the city hunting for a Polander, whose testimony is expected to clear up the mystery of the brutal murder of Ludwick Kubal in Peabody last January.

BANGOR, Me.—George Triplett, the seven-year-old son of Caius E. Triplett of this city, Special United States Pension Examiner, was fatally injured by being struck by an electric car of the Hammond street line.

RUTLAND, Vt.—With the exception of bequests of $10,000 to the Proctor Library Association and $500 to the Proctor Cemetery Association, the will of the late Senator Redfield Proctor leaves nothing to public institutions.

LEXINGTON, Ky.—After waiting fifteen minutes for William Barnes to finish shaving, Robert Barnes and William Tyree called him to his front door and killed him. The tragedy, which has shocked the entire community, is the result of a feud of forty years' standing.

AMESBURY—Clarence Cameron, employed by the Gypsy Moth Commission, was electrocuted while clipping moths' nests from trees. It is believed that Cameron's clippers came in contact with a wire.

PHILADELPHIA—The Pennsylvania Railroad has inaugurated the use of Phillips code in transmission of messages by telegraph between all division headquarters as well as other points where a large volume of communication is handled over the wires.

PITTSBURG—The American Mining Congress opened to-day in Carnegie Hall. Delegates were welcomed by Lieutenant-Governor Murphy and President L. S. Smith of the Chamber of Commerce.

RENEW FIGHT IN THAW CASE

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2.—Ex-Governor William A. Stone continued his argument to have Harry K. Thaw taken to Pittsburg to testify in his own bankruptcy proceedings when the hearing on the appeal from Judge Young's decision was resumed to-day before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

The tenor of Mr. Stone's argument was that Judge Young erred in quashing the writ issued by Judge Archbold of the Middle District, in which the sheriff of Westchester County, N. Y., and Superintendent of the Matteawan Criminal Insane Hospital were ordered to produce Thaw before the United States District Court at Pittsburg.

Headaches and Neuralgia from Colds. LAXATIVE BROMO Quinine, the world wide Cold and Grip remedy, removes cause. Call for full name. Look for signature E. W. Grove Co. 25c. *

The most gentle of Nature's laxatives put into candy form. That's Cascarets. Made to be taken in dainty doses, when you don't feel at your best.

For the cause of most of these troubles lies in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight means a cheery day tomorrow. Six bright days for ten cents. Are they worth it?

Don't think of Cascarets as a physic. They are candy tablets, as good as they are gentle.

Their effect is the same as the effect of some foods. They stimulate the bowels to natural action.

Those who have learned what is best carry a box in the pocket. They take one as soon as they need it.

Don't have a bowel wash-day. Don't take physics in large doses and rarely.

You wash your face at the first sign of uncleanliness. Why not be as clean with your bowels?

You know by the symptoms when your bowels need help. One Cascaret right then puts a stop to them.

You can just as well avoid these little ills—just as well keep at your best.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure you get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The price is 50c, 25c and

RAISE FUNDS FOR NURSERY AT BAZAAR

Society Women Pour Tea at Vendome; Chafing Dish Supper Tonight.

The rush of society patronage at the fair in the Hotel Vendome in aid of the South End Day Nursery, which began on the opening day yesterday, is being renewed on this, the second and closing day.

The candy, flower, doll and other tables, laden with pretty things for Christmas gift and household use, are well patronized and the accounts of the fair promise to show a fine balance on the credit side for the benefit of the day nursery and its little occupants.

At the opening afternoon tea, pouring was done by Mrs. Brewer Smith, Miss Dorothy Crosby, Miss Grace French, Mrs. Stanley Phillips Clemens, Miss Sally Allen, Miss Amelia Ladd, Miss Gladys Hoar, Miss Alice Ladd, Mrs. Frank G. Voorhees, Miss Florence Beal, Miss Beatrice Wright, Miss Marion Seavey, Miss Malda Hall and Miss Charlotte High.

At this noon's lunch the pourers included Mrs. Ezra Fitch and Mrs. Julian Mead, Mrs. Sumner Pearmain, Miss Emma Fitz and Mrs. Prescott Bigelow pour at the 4 o'clock musicale this afternoon.

A feature of last night was the entertainment program, in which the Harvard Glee Club and various artists from the vaudeville houses took part. A particular hit was made by Miss Grace Hazard, the "five feet of comic opera," from the Orpheum Theatre.

There will be a chafing-dish supper from 6 to 8 this evening and a cafe chantant will be in progress at 8 o'clock.

America's Greatest Fur Sale

Annual Event--Ten Day Sale

The united purchasing power of the Siegel chain of stores enabled us to own our furs at lower prices than any other store in Boston on account of the enormous quantities in which we buy. Never in the history of the Fur business have such values been offered as now. Other stores, caught by the tremendous advance in wholesale prices, are absolutely in no position to compete with the values we shall offer in America's Greatest Fur Sale beginning Thursday and continuing for ten days at least. Tremendous purchases contracted for early in the season, when wholesale prices were from 40 to 50 per cent. lower than now, make these prices possible on the finest grade furs obtainable. Sale begins THURSDAY morning.

FAMILY COMES IN AS ROBBER BAND GOES OUT

Home of Charles A. Dean in Melrose Ransacked From Top to Bottom.

$500 IN SILVERWARE GONE

As Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Dean and their two daughters returned from an evening call just before midnight to their home on Swain's Pond road, Melrose, burglars fled out the back door with $500 worth of jewelry, table silver and other valuables.

The fact that the burglars were still at work while the Deans were approaching the house is indicated by a pile of silver and other goods which had been put on the dining room table alongside of one of Mrs. Dean's suit cases, ready to be packed up.

Lights were still burning in the dining room and upstairs hall. Hearing the Deans coming hurriedly in the front door, the burglars decamped through the back door, taking what loot they already had packed up, leaving the back door open in their haste and escaping in the darkness through the back yard and adjacent streets.

Whole House Looted.

Mrs. Dean said to-day:

"Mr. Dean, our two daughters and myself went out before dark last night to spend the evening. There was no one left in the house. We returned home about 11:30 o'clock. We saw lights in the front hall as we came up the path and hurried into the house.

"The whole place had been ransacked, upstairs and down. Our bureau drawers and closets had been opened and everything thrown out.

"It is hard to tell the exact value of things stolen, as some of them meant more to us than their intrinsic value, as they were heirlooms. Jewelry so far missing includes two watches, four rings, three or four brooches, three pairs of earrings, gold chains, lockets, table silver and other goods. I should say that $500 would not cover the loss in money, to say nothing of the sentimental value many of the things had for us.

Packed Silverware Found.

"The burglars had come down stairs after ransacking the upper rooms. They packed up part of the table silver, then took another suit case and got out the rest of the silver to pack up. We must have come in just then. They fled out the back way, leaving the kitchen door open.

"We reported the break to the police and hope we may get the goods back. Neighbors tell us the house was lighted all up during the evening. But they supposed, of course, that we were at home."

Ship, Machinery and Derrick Riggers' No. 10,815 will nominate officers to-morrow night at No. 19 Border street, East Boston.

Machinists' No. 264 will elect officers to-morrow night in Machinists' Hall, No. 987 Washington street.

Painters' No. 11 elected the following committee to confer with the master painters on the new scale and working conditions: Joseph Brooks, William Lonergan, Daniel Reed, Carl Fischer, Ed. A. [illegible], John A. Buckley, Harry Noble, Ed. F. Moorehouse, with instructions to hold as early a meeting as possible.

President E. Frank Moorehouse, who has just returned from Portland, Maine, reports that Painters No. 237 of Portland are now experiencing the best business and conditions in its history. Every man is at work and the prospects are for a long season of employment.

President Philip H. Sweet of the State Branch of the American Federation of Labor was last night re-elected for the sixth consecutive year president of his local organization, Coopers No. 89. The other officers elected were: Vice-President, James Doyle; recording secretary, Matthew Colv; financial secretary, Raphael Rohrer; treasurer, Edward Norley; sergeant-at-arms, William McNamara; outside guard, Garrett Prentiville; inside guard, Thomas Finn; journal correspondent, Henry Riersatt. The grievance against a South Boston concern was given to the executive board.

Piano and Furniture Movers and Helpers No. 843 will hold a special meeting next Friday night at No. 1,006 Tremont street for the nomination of officers.

The joint organizing committee of Stationary Engineers No. 16, and Steam Engineers No. 263, met last night. Reports were received showing that 128 new members had been received into the two unions during the past six weeks as the result of the allied campaign.

The executive committee of Stationary Engineers No. 16 are completing plans for the monster mass meeting to be held in Faneuil Hall, on January 20 at which it is expected that President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, President John Mitchell of the Mine Workers, James Duncan, international secretary-treasurer of the Granite Cutters, and International President Matt Comerford of the Steam Engineers will speak.

It is planned to have a parade under the joint auspices of the four Boston locals, No. 4, No. 16, No. 74 and No. 263, to form at No. 514 Tremont street and headed by a large band march in a body to Faneuil Hall.

The special committee of ten elected by Boston Teamsters' Joint District Council, last night, at the office of local No. 25, corner of Causeway and Beverly streets, and completed plans for a continuation of the work done primary day against the candidacy of Alderman John F. Baldwin.

"BONI'S SUIT PLOT TO GET MORE MONEY"

—CLEMENCEAU

Countess Anna's Lawyer Brands Castellane's Strictures as Ridiculous.

SCORES FORMER HUSBAND

PARIS, Dec. 2.—"Count Boni de Castellane simply wants more money from his former wife.

"His strictures on the Princess and her husband are ridiculous in the extreme when his own mode of life, which is the laughing stock of all Paris, is considered by the court.

"Even were charges against the Princess de Sagan true, and they are utterly false, they have no bearing upon the issues of the case at point, which is whether the father or mother is to be give nthe custody of the children.

"After exhausting all of his former wife's funds, this man has the effrontery to come into court to demand that she now divide what she has since received with him, although he has no legal claim whatever upon her."

In the above statements Maitre Clemenceau, attorney for Anna Gould de Castellane-de Sagan, to-day answered the demands of the count that the children of the couple be taken from her and turned over to him to rear and educate. Incidentally the count demands that "suitable" provision be made for the children out of the estate of their mother, and that she be denied the privilege of seeing them at any time.

Clemenceau was especially bitter in his denunciation of the attorney for Boni, who characterized Princess de Sagan as "unworthy to have the care of her children" at the earlier hearings. He said that the children were given the best of care by their mother, and that all of the charges made by the count were unfounded.

Maitre Clemenceau requoted parts of the evidence taken in the divorce case in an attempt to prove that Count Boni's strictures against his cousin, the prince, were uncalled for.

"The greatest objection the count has to the prince," declared M. Clemenceau, "is that he is afraid that there is a possibility that he (the prince) may behave as badly in the future as Boni did in the past. Count Boni may have reproached the countess when she telegraphed an insult to his constituents after his re-election, but he did not reproach her for her foreign nature when he went to America to get her millions.

"The Marquise de Castellane may perhaps be an admirable woman and capable of raising children properly, but the Princess de Sagan may be pardoned if she refuses to place her children in her former mother-in-law's hands when she considers what a failure that lady made in raising her own son."

ESPERANTO DAY IN BOSTON SATURDAY

Saturday will be Esperanto day in Boston. In the afternoon there will be a walk about the city and in the evening supper at the Twentieth Century Club rooms at No. 3 Joy street.

Following the supper there will be a meeting of the New England division of the Esperanto Association, the first general meeting of the association. Prominent Esperantists from various parts of New England and elsewhere will be present and deliver short addresses.

SISTERS WED BROTHERS.

Freeport, Ill., Dec. 2.—Mary and Annie Borchart, sisters, were married to Charles and August Klentz, brothers, at a double wedding here to-day. Sisters and brothers of the brides and grooms acted as attendants. All were under twenty-five.

CURED ITCHING PAINFUL HUMOR

Which had Spread Over Face, Body and Arms—Swellings were as Large as a Dollar—When they Broke, Sores would Not Heal—Suffered 3 Years.

MADE SOUND AND WELL BY 3 SETS OF CUTICURA

"My trouble began about three years ago with little black swellings scattered over my face and neck. They would disappear but they would leave little black scars that would itch at times so I couldn't keep from scratching them. Larger swellings would appear in the same place and they were so painful I could hardly bear it and my clothes would stick to the sores. The first doctor I went to said the disease was scrofula, but the trouble only got worse and spread. By this time it was all over my arms and the upper part of my body in big swellings as large as a dollar. It was so painful that I could not bear to lie on my back at night. The second doctor pronounced my disease inflammation of the lymphatic glands. He stopped the swellings, but when they would break the places would not heal. He tried everything that he could but to no effect. He said I might be cured but it would take a long time. I bought a set of the Cuticura Remedies and used them according to directions and in less than a week some of the places were nearly well. I continued with the Cuticura Remedies until I had used three sets, and now I am sound and well. The disease lasted three years from the time it commenced until I was cured. Before Christmas something broke out on my seven year old brother's hands in the form of large sores. I tried everything I could think of but to no effect until I happened to think of Cuticura and one application cured him. Also, not long ago, my sister got a bad burn on her ankle. I have been using Cuticura on that and it gave her scarcely any trouble. O. L. Wilson, Puryear, Tenn., Feb. 3, 1908."

Warm baths with Cuticura Soap, gentle anointings with Cuticura Ointment and mild doses of Cuticura Pills, afford immediate relief and point to a speedy cure of torturing, disfiguring humors of the skin, scalp and blood of infants, children and adults, when all else fails.

Cuticura Soap (25c.) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c.) to Heal the Skin, and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.), (or in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60) to Purify the Blood. "TRILBY" WON DANCING TEST

"Trilby" Cassidy was the "big noise" in the dancing exercises at the Columbia Theatre last evening, and Trilby was just as wonderful with his feet as Du Maurier's heroine was with her voice.

With the music breaking softly on the ears of Mr. Cassidy and his brilliant partner, the eyes of the audience saw this graceful pair trip lightly on the stage, with movements in perfect time to the music, the pair being as near the poetry of motion as it was possible for dancers to be.

A prettier stage picture than that of Trilby Cassidy and Miss Lizzie Denning as they glided gracefully to the latest music has not been seen since the Columbia started the dancing contests.

The second prize was hard to decide and the audience would not be satisfied until two of the couples danced over again and then after a close call Miss Nellie Jordan money. The other couples were far better money. The other couples were fr better performers than the average seen at the Columbia on these occasions.

SATTERLEE TO TAKE NEWBERRY'S PLACE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Herbert L. Satterlee of New York, who was offered the position of assistant secretary of the navy to succeed Truman H. Newberry, who has been elevated to the head of the department, wired to the President his acceptance of the appointment.

CHARGE FOSS IN CONTEMPT CASE

Eugene N. Foss, millionaire, will have to appear in the Supreme Court on December 15 to show cause why he and the Locomobile Company of America should not be adjudged guilty of contempt of court for maintaining a garage on Newbury street in violation of an injunction issued some time ago by the Supreme Court.

The contempt proceedings were brought before Judge Loring to-day by Mary E. Keith, Croman J. Daly and Endicott & Warren, trustees of certain property on Newbury street. In the petition it is alleged that the defendant has occupied and still occupies the building as a garage, and the court is asked to issue such an order as will cause the defendant to discontinue the use of the building for such purpose.

FITZ AND M'DONALD IN A WORD BATTLE

Politicians are talking to-day of the word-clash in a barber shop on School street between former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald and Daniel J. McDonald, secretary of the Democratic City Committee. Those who heard the heart-to-heart confab declare that blue smoke curled over the heads of the belligerents. For a time it looked as though there would be a fistic demonstration, but this was averted. In the former Mayor's paper were some remarks about how the secretary had favored Mr. Donovan at the recent primaries, according to Mr. Fitzgerald's way of thinking. Mr. McDonald didn't like this. Hence the war of words.

WHAT TO DO IF BITTEN BY DOG

Owing to the prevalence of rabies among dogs and the danger to persons bitten by such dogs, the Boston Board of Health offers the following advice:

Persons should not handle, pet or harbor strange dogs.

Persons bitten by a dog should at once consult a physician for treatment.

Physicians are advised, when called upon to treat bites, to thoroughly cauterize all parts of the wound with strong nitric acid.

If the dog is known, or can be safely handled, it should not be killed, but be properly secured, reported to the Board of Health and held under observation for ten days. If, during that time, no symptoms of rabies appear in the dog, there is no danger for the person who has been bitten.

Should the dog appear dangerous to handle, it should be killed at once.

If the dog is known to be rabid, or is a stranger and escapes capture, the person bitten should begin the Pasteur treatment at once. This treatment may be given by the family physician or at the City Hospital.

PRES. ELIOT HASN'T HEARD OF NEW POST

President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard University has no expectation, at present at any rate, of becoming United States Ambassador to England to succeed Whitelaw Reid. According to reports in Washington he had been mentioned for the place, but President Eliot when asked about it said: "I have heard nothing about it except what appeared in the papers."

BEGIN FIGHT FOR ONE FARE

Backed by the Hyde Park Business Men's Association, the Readville Improvement Association and the Clarendon Hills and Hazelwood Associations, as well as the majority of the voters in Hyde Park, the Selectmen of Hyde Park have to-day ordered the Town Council, ex-Senator Charles F. Jenney to prepare a petition to be presented to the next Legislature, as well as the Board of Railroad Commissioners, asking that the Boston Elevated Railway be allowed to lease from the Old Colony Street Railway Company all of the trackage of that company in the Town of Hyde Park.

This action on the part of the Selectmen is the result of last night's meeting of the Board and is a move for 5-cent fares to Boston, for which the entire town has been fighting for some time past.

QUILL TOO FAST FOR ERNE

Tommy Quill once more got himself into the limelight by taking the measure of Young Erne, the Philadelphia footworker, in their third bout at the Armory A. A., and repudiated his standing in the last two clashes the pair have had in the same ring.

The Brockton boy, fighting the best in his career, and he had to show something better than he ever did, won without a question, in spite of the two previous doubtful awards, which he got the best of.

He had some weight on Erne, but this advantage was not given a thought till after the mill was over and it was Erne's chief excuse.

Quill did not show any of the stage fright that was evident in the last two encounters, but kept boring in from the first bell, breaking through Erne's wonderful left, countering him hard and fastening on heavy welts to the body which took the steam out of the Quaker and caused him to lose much of his cleverness.

Erne was there with his snappy left at the start off and began sending Quill's head back, but Tommy kept chasing as Erne circled around, and getting the Quaker in a corner pelted him with rights and lefts around his bellows which had the desired effect.

Strength Was Big Factor.

Tommy was strong as a young bull. The farther the sport went the more aggressive he became. He could see for himself that Erne was losing his power and skill and was guilty of hanging on in the clinches. It was when he got in close that Quill did the most execution. He had Erne twisting and turning in the last rounds, trying to evade the hard driving jolts to his damaged kitchen works.

Quill kept gaining in each round as Erne lost his effectiveness with his deadly left and gave considerable attention to holding Quill's hands in the clinches, as Tommy was busy as a bee when in close peppering on snappy jolts wherever there was an opening. Only Erne's great ability at blocking saved him a lot of trouble.

Quill Did the Infighting.

At infighting Quill had Erne beaten to a blister. The local boy kept up a constant jolting attack when close up, and Erne was doing his best to stop the shower of hot shot Quill was pumping in on the wind region.

Erne kept in step for five rounds, showing flashes of his brilliant sidestepping and shifty footwork, but he began to lose ground beginning with the sixth. Quill's body plugging was the chief cause of his downfall, as it not only killed his cleverness, but caused him to go wild in his delivery, and Quill caught him often when he missed.

The fifth session was the worst for Erne, as Quill connected for his jaw with a right cross which sent him staggering backward, and he had all he could do to catch his balance and prevent falling to the mat. Quill tore into him to put over another dizzy wallop, but Erne caught himself in time, and after stalling an instant came back like a tiger.

The Broctonite was the favorite when the pair entered the ring, being the big end of 10 to 8 and better.

Erne showed well for a couple of rounds with his lightning action on tap and he was in and out, scoring while Quill was trying to reach him. He had all the best of the first half of the third round, throwing over double lefts to body and head. Then going to the bell Quill evened matters by pinning Erne on the ropes and pasting him. Quill kept up his forcing tactics in the fourth, cornering Erne and tying him up. The fifth was decidedly in Quill's favor, as he nearly put Erne down with a solid right on the jaw.

Erne's Wild Delivery.

Erne began to miss fire in the seventh, which told plainly that he was out of gear. Quill was ready to grasp every opening, and drove some steamy hooks to the body. Quill caught the Quaker on the jaw with a right, and caused him to shake his head to get rid of the cobwebs. The last four rounds also belonged to Quill, who was counting inside while Erne was wasting a lot swinging on Quill's arms.

Billy Rolfe met a tough one in Jack Fitzpatrick of Philly in the semi-final of eight rounds, but came off the victor after a warm argument.

Rolfe went down in the second round from a smash on the jaw which travelled about six inches. This was a favorite weapon of Fitz and made the fans marvel. Rolfe kept pegging away landing often and showing considerable improvement in form.

Two raw-bones appeared in the six round preliminary in Jim Sullivan and Young Kelley, both of Boston. Kelley's long hair bothered him and got in his eyes and he kept digging it out of his peepers. Sully put over a right which floored Kelley in the third and the referee stopped furtehr carnage.

Young Nixon of Cambridge got a win over Kid McDonald of Chelsea in a rough and tumble affair of six rounds.

BOWLING ALLEY GOSSIP

Medford and Everett split even in their battle at the former's alleys, Medford getting two out of the three strings, but losing the total pinfall. Captain Hatch of the Everetts has protested the first string, and the dispute goes before the board of directors of the Elks' League for settlement.

By taking four points from Lynn the Winthrop five are now in second place by a narrow margin over Medford. The per cent. average for the four leading teams is as follows: Everett, 750; Winthrop, 708; Medford, 708, and Waltham, 688.

The victory of Winthrop in the final strings with Lynn can be credited to "Pee Wee" Wise, as he rolled 116, which just beat Lynn by a single pin, and it was a play-off string, the second having been a tie between the two teams. By the way, the 116 of "Pee Wee" puts him the leader of the league to date for individual string honors.

One of the regulars at the Old Colony alleys the other night put over a score of 145 for a string. It was a bracer for the BOSTON AMERICAN representative, as in the past few weeks the pins had behaved like they were nailed to the alley for him, especially in the weekly roll-offs.

"Chub" Cabors knocked down 320 in a match game, and he is picked for the regular on his five. These 320 scores do not come frequently enough with the candles to be called common.

James W. Bean is the right man in the right place as secretary of the Elks' League. What he don't know about bowling it is just as well to leave out of the book. Take one any way one wants, from being a top-notch bowler to keeping the books and knowing the rules.

The Medford K. of C. are ready to throw the books into any of the other teams in their division, beginning right now. They have lost their drive and when Ward, Crosby and McKeon are straightened out for that spare ball of theirs, it is a bet they are going some, and then some more.

Next week the [illegible] Interclub League gets under way. In the league is the Winthrop Yacht Club, Oxford Club, [illegible] A. A., Dudley Club, Colonial Club, Country Park Yacht Club, Newtowne Club and the Windsor Club. The players have been hard at practice for three weeks, and this early training means getting after big scores from the start.

GRIFFIN ISN'T ENGLISH "YER KNOW"

"Just make it as strong as you like that I'm not English," said little Charlie Griffin, the Australian featherweight to-day.

"My grandfather used to speak the real Gaelic, and I'm from Kangaroo land.

"I travelled 13,000 miles to box Jim Driscoll in England, and then was declared a loser in fifteen rounds because my head hit him on the chin. I was hustling into him, and he is taller than I, and that's how it happened.

"Then I fought Joey Bowker, and they were betting 10 to 1 against me, but they treated me pretty well after I knocked him out in eight rounds.

"The impression is that I am an Englishman, and it is wrong.

"That's a great club the Armory A. A.," continued Charlie. "It's the finest I ever saw, and I've travelled some. It's far superior to the National A. C. in London, and the training equipment is better.

"I like America the more I see of it. I was over here in 1906, but did not fight as I could not get the proper inducements which were due the champion of Australia.

"I have a nice business in Australia now, and intend to go back to it after I get to be champion of America.

"I haven't any love for Jim Driscoll and intend to beat him good and plenty next Tuesday night.

"I shall train at Northboro for the match and weigh in at about 126 pounds was over here in 1906, but did not fight,

Papke's Conqueror Will Quit Middleweight Division

KETCHEL AFTER BURNS

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 2.—Stanley Ketchel and Billy Papke will meet again in this city some time in February. This much was decided on to-day, O'Connor, manager for the champion, agreeing with Jones, who looks after Papke, on that point. This, however, will likely be Ketchel's last battle as a middleweight. Ketchel is averse to the middleweight division and says he will go after the heavyweights. Tommy Burns is the man he is after, but should he fail to get the heavyweight champion he will take the next nearest.

To Quit 158-Pound Class.

"Ketchel has worked hard taking off weight and it weakens him. It's too hard for a man that takes it on like Stanley and we will go after the big fellows hereafter," said O'Connor.

William Papke dropped into the Willus and was handed a package of delayed mail. The first letter he glanced at was addressed: "Billy Papke, Middleweight Champion of the World."

"You're a liar!" said Papke in tones that were bitterly ironical. "Champion, nothing!"

Then Billy's tongue loosened like every loser since boxing became a popular pastime. He was ready with excuses. He would not have it that Ketchel had proved himself a better man, but rather that Billy Papke, on that particular Thanksgiving afternoon, was fistically incapable.

"That wasn't my fight," said Billy. "I couldn't get started, and it would have been an easy thing for an ordinary lightweight to have downed me.

Thinks He Was Overconfident.

"I wanted to fight, but I couldn't. I went into the ring as unconcerned as possible and with no fear as to the result. Maybe I was overconfident. I felt that after what happened at Los Angeles I could hold Ketchel safe and thump him at will, and possibly I would have done better if I had given more thought to the job on hand.

"I knew when the first round was over that there was something wrong with me. I told the men in my corner that I couldn't fight a lick. I tried round after round to cut loose, but I couldn't. It was an off day with me and I am at a loss to account for it. I will just keep after Ketchel for a return match and I'll show the American sporting public that what happened at Los Angeles was no fluke."

While Papke was talking Manager Jones and O'Connor were conversing a few steps away.

"What are your chances for another match?" asked Jones.

Papke Promised First Chance.

"Well, I hardly think Ketchel will box again until February," replied O'Connor. "He has been training too steadily and he needs a layoff. He is going up to Mendocino to visit friends and then he is going to Grand Rapids to spend Christmas with his folks."

"Will he give Papke the first chance when he is ready to fight again?" asked Jones.

"He surely will," answered O'Connor.

Jones is the more downcast of the two. Papke feels that he is Ketchel's master, and that it will only be a question of time when he meets him again in the ring, and he figures he will then regain the title.

Men who are closely connected with Ketchel say he was in bad physical condition when the pair fought in Los Angeles, and that with Ketchel in shape he can trim Papke every time they meet.

Coffroth Loses on Go.

That game promoter, James W. Coffroth, dropped another nice little wad in this fight, the receipts being only $18,321. The fighters were assured $20,000. Then there was the expense of billing the town and such other expenses that go toward promoting a battle, and Jimmy is close to $5,000 in the hole. James, however, never murmurs. "It's I lost it this time. I'll make it up next." Coffroth is now directing his attention toward a match between Welch and McFarland.

O'Connor intimates that Ketchel is putting on weight so rapidly that in a few months he will no longer be a middleweight. He said:

"We have not drawn the color line and will fight Langford if there are inducements, but not before the white men are cleaned up. There are plenty of them yet, so there is no occasion to talk about Langford. Ketchel will be glad to fight Burns, and I think he will be really a heavyweight in a few months."

BASEBALL NEWS AND NOTES

The Tri-State Baseball League, at its meeting, reduced its salary limit to $2,500 per year for the season of 1909 and set $225 per month as the limit to be paid any player during the season.

Says an exchange in quoting sayings of great men: "It doesn't take a fountain pen to write a gushing letter.—C. W. Murphy." Funny how they are warming up to the Protesting One these days.

Another paragrapher gets off the following on Chubby Charley: "He is one lucky man. He doesn't know enough baseball to keep himself warm, but fell in soft when he was hired as figurehead of the Cubs."

Long John Anderson has saved so much money in baseball and real estate that he has sprung a touring car in Worcester, his home town.

H. J. L.—Mordecai Brown lost his finger in a feed chopper when he was seven years old. Yes, we consider it a lucky loss.

KENNELWORTHS WILL PLAY

The Kennelworths dispute the claim of the Dorchester Heights eleven that they have won every game this season, as the former team won from them 5 to 0 early in the season. These two teams meet Saturday at Franklin Field and will decide the matter once for all.

FOR BOSTON SPEEDWAY.

In Busy Boy, 2:17¼, Sam Hastings of Boston bought a real good trotter, but he will probably still use The Aroma, 2:10¼, on the speedway. The new horse being good enough for G and Circuit company, will be wintered by Walter Cox.

HORSE NEWS TRACK GOSSIP

Instead of Audubon Boy, p., 1:59¼, siring colts which, in the majority of cases, one would expect to be pacers, his owner stated that of the seven he owns, five are trotters and that one of them, now a yearling, out of Fanny M., by Quartermaster, 2:21¼, has trotted an eighth in 16¾ seconds.

Nat Crist of Geneva, Pa., who has driven the famous chestnut pacing gelding Eph Cinders, 2:05¾, to many a good victory, is of the opinion that Uncle Ephraim will be able to again give the wise boys a surprise in 1909.

A. B. Van Houten will again Winter his stable of campaigners at the Mineola fair grounds, Long Island. Among the record horses in the string are the pacers Gallagher, 2:03½; Oro Edi, 2:09¼; Nicko, 2:14¼, and the trotter Haughty Medler, 2:20¾.

Captain David Shaw, owner of the great race mare Lillian R., 2:04½, and quite a number of other good winners of recent seasons, calls attention to the fact that Lillian's record is the fastest ever made by a trotting mare in an open race where there were three or more starters.

The New York Driving Club has held its annual meeting and elected officers for the coming year. George W. Grote was re-elected president and T. G. Hoole secretary and treasurer. A committee was appointed to call upon James Butler, owner of Empire track, for the purpose of asking him for the use of the course for 1909 racing.

Amos Kenison, who had a fine season on the [illegible] with a number of trotters and pacers, most of which were owned by Frank Mathey of Syracuse, N. Y., has signed to train and race [illegible] William Gifford, who has a stock farm close to Syracuse. He is also Wintering and will race in 1909 the trotting mare Rosemary Cannes, 2:10¼, for R. W. Harris of Sackett's Harbor, N. Y.

Early Alice (2:08¾) did not seem herself in her last race of the season against Sonoma Girl (2:05¼) at Dallas, Texas, and became so lame after it that it was feared she had broken down.

Walter R. Galloway of Montgomery, Ala., who sold Yotely, p. (2:08½), to Griggsville, Ill., parties, has identified the gelding.

Trainer John Flagler has engaged with Reidston Farm, Richmond, Ind.

SPORTING NEWS IN BRIEF.

BOXING.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2.—Frankie Madole of Pittsburg was beaten by Tommy Langdon of Port Richmond at the Douglas A. C.

READING, Pa., Dec. 2.—Paddy Larvin of Buffalo shaded Billy Willis of Philadelphia in a fast ten-round bout at the Reading A. C.

LEWISTON, Me., Dec. 2.—Mike Cunningham of Lewiston and Tom Larrabee of Bath fought six fierce rounds to a draw in City Hall. George Phalen of Portland and Joe Chartrand of this city fought six rounds, with honors about even.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—With a cordon of police outside the Long Acre A. C., Young French and Frankie Mango fought six fierce rounds to a draw. The members of the club watched the fighters in silence, having been warned that the police were outside.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 2.—Kid Murphy and Joe Coster fought a ten-round draw before the Knickerbocker Athletic Club in this city.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Jimmy Britt, the San Francisco lightweight, and Johnny Summers, the English fighter, signed articles to fight before the National Sporting Club on Feb. 22 for a purse of $5,000.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ROLLER POLO RESULTS—At Brockton, Brockton 4, Bridgeport 2; at Pawtucket, Pawtucket 6, New Haven 4; at New Britain, New Britain 10, Providence 3.

IN THE Class B tournament at the Hub Billiard Palace De Freitas defeated Franklin, 200 to 185.

AT A MEETING of the Harvard varsity and freshman hockey teams seventy-five men handed in their names as candidates. Captain Willetts, Coach Winser and Trainer Donovan spoke, outlining the work of the season.

The sporting section of next Sunday's Boston American will be full of interesting features. Don't miss it.

FOOTBALL.

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 2.—Little Boy was chosen captain of the Carlisle Indian football team. Scott Porter is the real name of the new captain. He is a Cheyenne and his home is in Oklahoma. He succeeds Emil Hauser.

AT A MEETING of the Tufts College Athletic Association the following were elected to represent Tufts at the New England Intercollegiate A. A. meeting to be held this Winter: Charles A. Robinson, '09; and Carl P. Hubbard, '09. The election of managers for next year's football season resulted in the choice of John Adams, '10, as manager, with Russell P. Wise as first assistant manager.

MAJOR HENRY LEE HIGGINSON, '55, will preside at the dinner to be tendered the Harvard football team by the Boston Harvard Club at the Hotel Somerset this evening. J. W. Farley, '98, will act as toastmaster and speeches will be made by Dean Briggs, Postmaster-General George Von L. Meyer, '79; W. F. Garcelon, L., '95; Coach P. D. Haughton, '99, and Captain F. H. Burr, '09.

HORSEMAN IN CONGRESS.

Ohio is a great State for good horses, numerous elections and able statesmen. The horse breeders in the "Buckeye State" are being elected to office right along. General J. R. Sherwood, for many years editor of the American Sportsman, was re-elected to Congress from the Ninth Ohio (Toledo) District.

FOOTBALL BEATS RACING.

It is estimated that in all not less than $1,000,000 was bet throughout the country on the result of the Harvard-Yale football game. That beats horse racing to a "frazzle."

Coast "Outlaws" Seek Protection

BASEBALL MEN TO MEET

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—"Busiest man in town!" was the way President Pulliam rambled along yesterday afternoon, as he scattered a pile of mail four feet high. "You see, I haven't a thing done toward my report for the annual meeting next week. Had a bully good vacation and now must pay the piper.

"The national board of directors will meet at noon Tuesday, December 8, at my office. The league will convene at 2 o'clock that afternoon at the Waldorf-Astoria. The American League will start its meeting on Wednesday. The National Commission will convene whenever it finds time in the interim. The commission has a lot of business that it will probably dispose of at that time. Of course, it had been decided at the last meeting to take up these matters in the February meeting, as at that time the commission did not intend to meet in December."

According to Mr. Pulliam, the work before the Commission this session will be much heavier than usual. There are countless protests from players and clubs to be decided, as well as some score of squabbles that have resulted from draft. Then, too, there is the matter of the Coast "Outlaws," who are seeking protection. This organization is made up of the towns of Fresno, Sacramento, San Jose and Stockton. All but the latter are clamoring to get into organized baseball, and it is pretty nearly a sure thing that their application will be accepted. In all probability Presidents Pulliam and Johnson of the rival major leagues will go direct from the meetings here to the Coast to investigate conditions there.

Perhaps the most important matter on the hands of the National Commission is the disciplining of the major league players who played against the Logan Squares and other semi-professional Chicago teams at the conclusion of the past season. The Senators and White Sox are the only ones with whom the commission will have to deal. Milwaukee's refractory stars will have to be dealt with by the National Association. President Pulliam says the commission has taken a firm stand on the matter and that until the Washington and Chicago players have sought and obtained reinstatement at its hands there will be nothing doing in the matter of contracts for next year. He intimated that stiff fines await the culprits. Garry Herrmann, chairman of the commission, will be in town Sunday, and the meeting is subject to his call.

President Pulliam found time to spring a couple of Winter anecdotes of the ball players. "On my way back here from the Indian Territory I stopped off at St. Louis," said he. "I went to see a moving picture show reproducing the world's series between the Cubs and the Tigers. Harry Howell, of the St. Louis Browns, was the lecturer. 'Mordecai Brown, the greatest pitcher in the game, is now putting them over for the Cubs,' said Harry, 'and he has only got three fingers at that.' Then a voice from the gallery said, 'Why don't you cut off a couple of your fingers, Harry?' 'I would in a minute,' answered the Brooklyn boy, 'if I could then pitch like Brownie.'"

"I met Rube Waddell," said Pulliam, "in the lobby of the Planters' Hotel. He was looking for President Hedges of the Browns. On his arm the great left-hander had a big basket containing a deer's head, a big chunk of venison, a wild turkey and three birds. 'I shot all these myself,' said Waddell, 'and I am going to present them to President Hedges.' Then he naively added: 'I need some advance money to see me through the Winter.'"

JACK DEMPSEY NEVER WON BACK LOST TITLE

BY TAD.

A correspondent writes us, asking if Jack Dempsey won back a title after losing it. He says that Ketchel and Matthews were not the only two, but that Dempsey did the trick also.

Billy Madden, who was with Dempsey a great deal and who was Little Bright Eyes at that time, says no. Billy declares that Dempsey beat La Blanche at Larchmont with skin-tight gloves in thirteen rounds. Jack won the middleweight title on that.

The pair met again in Frisco, and La Blanche knocked the Nonpareil out with the now famous pivot punch, later on called the "La Blanche swing." After that La Blanche refused to meet Dempsey, and Jack went along as the middleweight champion until Fitzsimmons beat him. Madden says that Dempsey was a wreck from booze at that time.

"I taught La Blanche to box for the sum of $6," said Madden, in talking over the old times. "His right name was George Le Blair, and he was stationed in the barracks at Quebec, Canada. I had twenty-two soldiers at the time in my class, and George was the best. I had made one fellow, Ambrose Carney, heavyweight champion of Canada, and they liked me well. Teaching those fellows how to cross was a hit with me. Why, every day we have five or six fights up there. La Blanche was a strong, willing fellow, and I figured him to be a great man."

* * *

Sailor Burke isn't taking any chances on advice these days. The night he fought Joe Thomas in Boston he not only had Madden help him, but another second as well. Before the go, Madden told the other seconds that if they saw anything to notify him and he would tell Burke. The latter told Harry Edels to whisper in one ear while Madden was whispering in the other. In that way he got onto all that was going on from two different viewpoints.

Madden thinks that his tar can give any of them a go, Thomas, Papke or Ketchel. Bill says that the sailor is himself again.

* * *

Jim Driscoll will be busy these next few weeks. He meets Grover Hayes at Philadelphia on the fifth, and then on the eighth comes to Boston, where he shows his line of goods to Charlie Griffin in a twelve-round go. Jim won from Griffin on a foul in sixteen rounds over in London before he came here, and should cop again.

By the way, Griffin has ANOTHER manager now. Danny Crowley, the Columbus of many a good mitt slinger, has Charles under his wing.

BOXING BITS OF NEWS

More than a dozen high-class boxers will Winter in Los Angeles. With the game on the boom all over the country, the Angel City promises to be the pugilistic hub around which the champions and near-champions will revolve.

They say that Stanley Ketchel made a nice pile by defeating Billy Papke at 'Frisco on Thursday. Of course, Billy Papke is after Ketchel, and he demands a return match. It's safe to say, though, that the new champion will give the fallen idol consideration only when he is good and ready. This is the way of champions.

Freddy Welsh, the English boxer, who defeated Abe Attell, is now going after Battling Nelson. Welsh means business, and he says that he will back himself with his own coin.

Here's a funny one: Freddy Welsh is the only vegetarian among the fighting men. There was one other near-champion, Kid Parker, of Denver, who was a vegetarian, but he was put in a padded cell in a sanitarium.

Jim Corbett declares that Tommy Burns is stooping lower than any heavyweight champion ever did in giving Jack Johnson a chance to box for the title.

A Pittsburg promoter of boxing has been in communication with Johnny Coulon in reference to the latter's willingness to meet Patsy Brannigan, who is just at the present time the real thing in boxing circles in Smoketown. The father of the bantamweight champion, E. E. Coulon, wired back that his son will gladly accommodate the promoter, but that he must be shown satisfactory inducements before making the match.

Receipt That Cures Weak Men---Free

Send Name and Address Today—You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, failing memory and lame back, brought on by overwork, that has cured so many sick and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain strength quickly and quietly should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription, free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope, to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men.

I think I owe it to my fellow man to send them a copy in confidence, so that any man, anywhere, who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what, I believe, is the quickest-acting restorative, upbuilding, SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Mr. A. E. Robinson, 4,007 Luck Bldg., Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid receipt, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope, free of charge.

LONGBOAT WILL MEET DORANDO ON DEC. 15

NEW YORK, Dec. 2—Dorando Pietro is going to run another Marathon race at Madison Square Garden within two weeks. The match between the little Italian and Tom Longboat, the famous Canadian Indian runner which has been hanging since the night when Dorando lowered Johnny Hayes's colors was finally clinched to take place at the Garden on Tuesday night, December 15, three days after the finish of the six-day bicycle race.

The men will run the usual distance, twenty-six miles, 385 yards. Longboat has been taken in hand by Tom Eck, the well-known trainer.

COLORED BOXER AFTER BOUTS

Cleve Hawkins, a strapping colored boxer from Chicago, is in the Hub looking for a bout with any of the 155-158-pounders, and bars none. He is willing to box winner take all in order to show the fans what he can do in the ring. He has met some tough ones in Philadelphia, including George Cole, Gunther and Blackburn, and made good in his bouts.

He wants a semi-final bout at the Armory A. A., and would like to get Larry Temple in the ring, or any other hard customer.

ANNUAL BANQUET OF BOSTON HORSEMEN

The sixth annual banquet of the Dorchester Gentlemen's Driving Club will be held at the Quincy House, Thursday evening, December 10. A reception will be held from 6 to 7 o'clock, when dinner will be served. Among the invited guests will be Mayor Hibbard, the Board of Aldermen, Dorchester Councilmen, the Metropolitan Park Commissioners and officers of all the driving clubs in the State.

A Man May Eat Any Meal

And Digest It Easily If He Will But Try.

FREE DIGESTIVE TABLETS.

Don't be afraid of your meals. The reason you have dyspepsia is that something is lacking in your digestive apparatus necessary to the stomach's work.

A perfect stomach loves to work. Perfect digestion is not afraid of any meal and benefits by its consumption of food the whole machine of man.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets make easy the work of digestion, because they combine active fruit and vegetable essences which are needed by the stomach.

These essences are so powerful they digest food without aid from the stomach. They have done this with a meal encased in a glass tube.

We will send a trial package to any one free for his name and address.

Eat what you will and when you will, then take a Stuart Dyspepsia Tablet and see how you will digest that meal. In a short time your stomach will have a natural supply of gastric juices and your whole system will be able to take care of digestion easily.

Ask any druggists about Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. His answer will tell more than we can say. Ask him how they sell. If you want to buy them give him 50c. But if you want to test them write us and you will receive a trial package by mail without cost. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 0 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

TOM LONGBOAT, FAMOUS RUNNER

ALL-EASTERN TEAM PICKED BY EXPERTS

The football season is over, and the newspaper "experts" have picked their "All-American" teams. As the choice is largely influenced by the point of view, no two of them are exactly alike in personnel. Probably a half dozen teams might be selected from the wealth of excellent material this year which would be nearly equal in strength. It is of interest to the football public, however, to know the concensus of opinion of those who have closely followed the game for the leading newspapers in the matter of All-American, or, more properly, all-Eastern, selections. A summary of twelve teams, the choices of twelve leading newspapers of the East, including the selections of most of the New York sporting experts, is given herewith.

In selecting the ends and back fields, there seems to be very little divergence of opinion. Both Schildmiller, of Dartmouth, and Scarlett, of Pensylvania, are picked by 10 out of 12 experts. Kennedy, of Dartmouth, is on two of the teams; Vorhis, of Penn State, on one, and Dennie, of Brown, on one.

Coy is the choice of 9 out of 12 for fullback; Hollenback, of Pennsylvania, of 2, and Marks, of Dartmouth, of 1. Eleven of 12 name Tibbott for halfback, 8 name Hollenback, 2 pick Coy, while Marks, White, of Harvard, and Malder, of Cornell, are named once.

For quarterback, Lange, of the Navy, is the choice of 6; Miller, of Pennsylvania, of 3; Cutler, of Harvard; Stiffen, of Chicago, and Balenti, of Carlisle, 1 each.

Nourse of Harvard leads all for centre, being the choice of 9 out of 12. Schultz of Michigan is named twice, and Brusse of Dartmouth once.

For guards the figures are: Goebel, Yale, 7; Tobin, Dartmouth, 7; Andrus, Yale, 6; Hoar, Harvard, 2; Siegling, Princeton, 1, and Cosgrove, Cornell, 1.

For the tackle positions, Fish leads with 7, closely followed by Siegling with 6; Draper of Pennsylvania is the choice of 5, Hoar of 3, O'Rourke of Cornell of 2 and Morr of Syracuse of 1.

The "all-expert" "all Eastern" team (with Walter Camp still to be heard from) would therefore be made up as follows:

End—Schildmiller, Dartmouth.
Tackle—Siegling, Princeton.
Guard—Tobin, Dartmouth.
Centre—Nourse, Harvard.
Guard—Goebel, Yale.
Tackle—Fish, Harvard.
End—Scarlett, Pennsylvania.
Quarterback—Lange, Navy.
Halfback—Tibbott, Princeton.
Halfback—Holenback, Pennsylvania.
Fullback—Coy, Yale.

SYMBOLEER SIRING PLENTY OF SPEED

The stallion Symboleer, [illegible] record 2:09½, that was at one [illegible] owned by the late F. C. Sayles, proprietor of Mariposa Stock Farm, not far from Providence, R. I., is gaining quite a reputation as a sire of speed. He is now credited with eight trotters and nine pacers that have made records in standard time. Three of them, two pacers and a trotter, have made records faster than 2:10. The four-year-old trotter Joe Bowers (2:11¾), that was campaigned successful in the West this season, is one of Symboleer's get.

BARGAINS IN WOMEN'S SUITS

Useful holiday gifts at January prices! Who ever heard of the like? Yet this unusual promise is being made to-day to Boston people by a firm which builds a large part of its reputation on the declaration that what it says it will do it will do.

Now what will any woman in Boston think when she hears that J. G. Small & Co. of No. 523-525 Washington street are promising to sell high-grade tailored suits, dresses, costumes, coats, waists, skirts, petticoats, sweaters, furs and fur coats at January prices just before the holidays?

This mark-down sale is now being conducted by J. G. Small & Co., who, by the way, have a store at No. 24 Fauborg Poissonniere, Paris, in their Washington street store here. It is on now, and gives every woman, young, middle-aged or past the prime, an opportunity to secure useful Christmas gifts at after-holiday prices, so the firm declares.

As is customary in all special sales, the rule of first ready first served applies, and the greatest bargains are available for the early purchasers.

Small & Co. are offering all their imported evening coats and wraps, the balance of this season's imported models and suits and all their imported gowns and dresses at less than one-half price during the sale.

There are broadcloth coats, ulsters, raincoats, caracul and motor coats, evening coats and capes of all lengths. Then [illegible] are the newest shades of broadcloth, English serges, worsteds and mannish mixtures made into tailored gowns cut in empire, directoire, colonial, military and hipless styles. There are all sorts of gowns, dresses and lingerie to be had, too.

COMPANY PUTS IN 300 NEW LOOMS

PLAINFIELD, Ct., Dec. 2.—The increase in business in teh textile district is being felt here to such an extent that most of the mills are now working overtime, and many of them are putting in new machinery. The latest announcement comes from Versailles to-day, where the Totoket Cotton Company has started the installation of 300 new looms, costing about $40,000. This is a part of a plan for a $100,000 extension, to be completed by Spring.

SNOWSTORM STOPS HUNT.

Duluth, Minn., Dec. 2.—A man hunt which began here ten days ago to capture the murderers of John M. Connely, who was shot at Proctor, was just getting exciting when snow fell near the Canadian border and the bloodhounds lost the scent It is not likely that they can escape, however.

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

FRANCES DURANT, the beautiful [illegible] heiress of the head of the Durant [illegible] works, is in love with Lieutenant Sommers of the United States Navy, inventor of a marvelous [illegible] for naval vessels that is being cast for [illegible] at the Durant works.

Sommers is deeply in love with the girl, but he is not wealthy, and he knows it is commonly believed that Frances is to marry Edward Pinckney, the manager of the works.

By consummate coquetry, Frances leads Sommers almost to the point of declaring [illegible] when the two are interrupted by Pinckney's arrival.

Discovering that Sommers is paying the girl too much attention, Pinckney bestirs himself and invites her to the theatre, only to find that she is going with Sommers.

Pinckney, orphaned by the suicide of his father, who had been Durant's friend, was adopted by Durant in childhood and educated by him. Both Durant and his wife, especially the latter, favored Pinckney's suit, but Frances had given him little ground for hope.

Jealous and angry, Pinckney decides to use his position as manager to push a [illegible] gun, called the Rhinestrom, also being made in the Durant works, ahead of the Sommers gun, which depends for its success on being most carefully made.

An old employe, Marsh, is the real inventor of the Rhinestrom gun, and Pinckney arranges with him to give him a small royalty and to reap a rich harvest in secret for himself if the Rhinestrom gun succeeds.

Inspecting Frances's workroom at the top of the house with her, Sommers finds that she has a wireless telegraph station there and is a competent operator. She talks understandingly about his invention, and asks if it would blast all his hopes, should it fail.

CHAPTER V.—Continued

"WE'RE all merely cogs in the big machine, Miss Durant—we fellows from Annapolis and West Point—cogs in the machine that backs the flag, and the flag's the biggest thing to us, you know. It's hard, sometimes, fearfully hard. We have to give up a lot. But it's duty, and duty is what we must think of."

The girl had been looking at him, admiration and just a hint of something more showing in her face.

"Yes," she said at last; "after all, you men of the navy and the army are the real patriots working for your country. You seem to be about the only ones who do any real sacrificing." Then her voice became more earnest. "But I don't see why you should sacrifice everything."

The man laughed, somewhat grimly.

"That's just it, you see," he said. "We try not to sacrifice everything. We always try not to sacrifice our self-respect, I think."

"Self-respect, fiddlesticks! It isn't self-respect men won't sacrifice," she snapped. "It's generally selfishness. Oh, how you men do love to fool yourselves. You step back and stand on your dignity, so proud and hard and rigid, and you pretend you're suffering—that you are heroes who won't sacrifice self-respect—and in reality you are nothing of the kind.

"You are simply stupid self-deceivers who are willing to sacrifice your futures, happiness, everything on the altar of your own selfishness—really sacrifice yourselves and sometime——"

She paused suddenly, aghast at what she was about to say.

"And sometimes?" the man questioned unsteadily.

"And sometimes girls talk more than they should," she ended sharply. Then she looked at him with a sudden smile and quick change of mood that baffled him completely. "I think it's time we went back to wireless telegraphy, don't you?"

'I'll Send It to You''

Baffled, but still somewhat relieved at being saved from himself, Sommers turned to the wireless instrument.

"You can send and take well?" he asked.

"Of course," she answered. "Edward taught me, originally, but I've learned a lot since. He's quite an adept, too. I learned really because I wanted to have a wireless plant placed on father's yacht. Perhaps sometime, when I'm cruising on the yacht, I may pick you up when you are on your battleship, and have a little chat with you. Do you think you'd be glad to hear from me?"

"I'd be glad to hear from you, no matter where I was," he exclaimed eagerly, "and I'd recognize you, too, whether the message was directed to me or not."

"I will send it to you," she said with meaning, "and you must recognize it."

"I will; you may be sure of that," he agreed earnestly. "And now I think I must be going. It's late."

He turned within the door, and then started back to the drawing room.

Meantime, down in the drawing room, Edward Pinckney had been having an uncomfortable quarter of an hour. Marsh had come up from the works, determined to see Mr. Durant.

Pinckney had not told the master draughtsman of the contract which he had signed, and Marsh, thoroughly embittered with the prospect of losing everything he had done, hurried up to the house, determined to lay bare the whole matter before the owner of the works, throw himself on Durant's mercy and beg that at least he be given credit for the invention of the Rhinestrom gun.

Fortunately Pinckney had been in the drawing room when the butler brought in Marsh's name, and so had been able to intercept the man before he got to Durant.

"I don't want to talk to you," exclaimed the inventor, when he entered and found it was Pinckney and not Durant he had been shown in to see. "I don't want any more of your soft talk. You talk and promise, but you don't do anything.

"I ought to have known better than to trust you the other day when you fooled me down at the works, with all that stuff about giving me a chance. I felt in my heart you weren't going to do it, but, like a fool, I trusted you, and this is what I get for it.

"You haven't made any contract. You haven't done anything but run ahead and perfect the patents, and now I am entirely at your mercy.

"I'm going to fool you. I'm going to put it up to the old man. He's on the level, anyhow. He'll give me a chance and a little reputation, even if he doesn't give me the money. I'm going to see him. I tell you. I'm going to stay here till I do."

The voice of the man had risen until he was fairly shouting at the general manager.

"Don't yell like that," protested Pinckney.

"I don't wonder you want me to keep quiet," sneered the inventor. "You ought to want me to keep quiet."

Pinckney had regained his wits now. He saw it was the time for diplomacy, not force, so he put on his blandest, most ingratiating smile.

Pinckney on the Defensive

"Now listen to me, Marsh," he pleaded. "You're up in the air with this, because you've got an entirely wrong idea of me. Every since that accident you've acted as if I were to blame."

"I don't want to talk about that," exclaimed the inventor. "You can't sidetrack me with any talk like that."

"But I want you to get a square deal," protested Pinckney. "I'm going to see that you do."

Marsh looked at him with a sneer.

"You call it a square deal to give the credit for all my work to another?"

"Of course, it wouldn't be," exclaimed the manager. "That's just it. I'm going to put it through for you if you'll only give me a chance."

"After what you said the other day?" sneered the other.

"And I've done it,' snapped Pinckney.

"You've done it?"

The general manager nodded.

"Exactly," he said. "The contract between Wilhelm Rhinestrom and the Durant Steel Works has been drawn up, signed by Rhinestrom and by me for the Durant Steel Works, but only waits for the approval of Mr. Durant; and I'll get that tonight."

"Rhinestrom signed it," gasped Marsh. "How could Rhinestrom sign it, when there isn't any Rhinestrom?"

Pinckney looked at him pityingly.

"What do I care who signed it for Rhinestrom, if you get the money," he said. "The name on the contract is Wilhelm Rhinestrom."

"You forged that name," gasped Marsh.

"Shut up," snapped the other. 'Don't be a fool. You can't forge a man's name if the man doesn't exist. Now take your money and be satisfied. Leave it to me. I'm your friend. I'm proving myself your friend, and here you go ahead and kick up a fuss and risk the whole thing.

"I've taken a little risk myself to put this thing through, and give you a square deal; and this is what you do in the way of gratitude. Now aren't you ashamed of yourself?"

Marsh looked at the manager apologetically.

CHARGE POLICE PLOT AGAINST THE STROZZIS

Pleading for the acquittal of Salvatore Strozzi and his wife, Mary, on trial before Judge Hardy and jury in the East Cambridge court on a second degree murder charge, Attorney Peter F. Maher to-day called upon District-Attorney Higgins to indict Police Lieutenant Eugene Carter, Sergeant James M. Harmon and Officers Arnold, Reed and Neylon upon the charge of conspiring to kill and murder the defendants.

Attorney Maher called these members of the Somerville police department "execrable miscreants." He said that if they had told the Grand Jury about the big jack knife found under the body of Peter J. [illegible] nue, Somerville, at about midnight on [illegible] would have been returned against the husband and his pretty wife.

Charges Police Conspiracy.

"If they had done their whole duty," he said, "the defendants would not have been in jail for eight months awaiting trial. If the district attorney does his duty he is bound to indict the members of the Somerville police department who have testified at this trial for a conspiracy to kill and murder Salvatore and Mary Strozzi.

"The district attorney should indict Lieutenant Carter, Sergeant Harmon and Patrolmen Arnold, Reed and Neylon for [illegible]

"They conspired together to withhold the knowledge that a knife had been found under Wilson's body. These fiends in human form, who were sworn to tell the whole truth and nothing but the truth withheld this information in the Somerville police court, and it was withheld from the grand jury."

Asks for Acquittal.

Before Attorney Maher began his argument he asked Judge Hardy to rule:

There is no evidence to warrant a verdict of guilty of murder against the defendants or either of them.

Upon all the evidence the defendants and each of them, are entitled to acquittal.

Judge Hardy refused to make either ruling, and then Attorney Maher began his plea for the prisoners and his denunciation of the police. He said that Strozzi had shot Wilson in self-defence when the latter attacked him with the knife which was afterward found under his body.

A Mother's Jealousy

It May Spoil the Happiest Time in Her Son's Life

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THE Spinster-Lady stopped on her way to business to leave a message for a friend. When she entered the library the friend's mother was standing at the window gazing down the village street.

As she turned to greet the Spinster-Lady the latter saw that her eyes were full of tears.

"Why, dear Mrs. M——," she said, "what is the matter? Can I do anything for you?"

The older woman smiled mistily.

"Don't mind me, my dear," she said.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

"I am quite a foolish old woman. I'm ashamed of myself."

But the younger woman still looked concerned, for she loved the mother of her friend. So seeing the distress on her face the mother spoke:

"I am crying about Herbert. Don't think he has done anything wrong, for he is the best son in the world, but this morning I feel for the first time as though I had somehow lost my boy."

She paused and then went on dreamily:

"Eighteen years ago, from this very window, I watched him trudge down the street on his way to school for the first time. As he reached the corner he turned and kissed his little red-mittened hand to me. I can see him yet, my baby son, starting out so gravely. Every day during all his school days I watched him, and never once did he forgot to turn at that corner and kiss his hand.

"To-day He Forgot"

"The day he went away to college he turned there for a last wave and kiss of his hand, and when he finished college and began to go to business every day he again took up the old custom, and never once forgot me. But to-day"—her voice quivered.

"Well," said the Spinster-Lady, gently, "to-day?"

"To-day he forgot."

"Perhaps he was in a great hurry."

"He has often been in a hurry, but even if he was running for his train he never forgot. No, my dear," and here her voice grew tragic, "he forgot because he was with a girl."

"Oh, I see." And the Spinster-Lady tried hard to look sympathetic, for she knew the mother's heart was sore with jealousy. "Well, probably he just met her, and in greeting her he did not realize that he had reached the corner."

But the mother was not to be comforted so easily.

"No," she said dismally, "I can't console myself with that theory. You see, the girl happened to be Lucille K——, and for some time I have seen how things were going. He is falling in love with her, and I must just make up my mind to take second place and lose my boy."

Not Second Place

"But, dear," said the Spinster-Lady earnestly, "you are not taking second place, nor losing him. The two loves do not conflict in any way.

"No woman could ever take your place as Herbert's mother, but you could not fill the place in his heart that is reserved for a wife. He will still think you the most wonderful mother in the world, just as Lucille will be the most wonderful girl. When you married, did you love your father any the less?"

"No, but father was very jealous of my husband until he got to know him well."

"That's just it. Mothers and fathers are always a wee bit jealous when it comes time for the birdlings to flee the home nest; but they will flee, you know."

"If only he had not forgotten to kiss his hand to me!"

"You know you must remember that Herbert is just in the process of falling in love, and," with a smile, "you must acknowledge it is a somewhat bewildering occupation."

"Well," said the mother, "perhaps you are right. I must not be selfish and jealous and spoil this, the happiest time of his life, but make up my mind to welcome my new daughter with open arms."

"That's the way to take it," said the Spinster-Lady, cheerfully.

But, all the same, her heart ached for the woman who was making room for another woman on the throne which up to that time she alone had held.

The Girl With a Hundred Selves

Startling Confessions of an Unknown Girl Writer

By ? ? ? ? ? ? ?

My Luxurious Self

TO-NIGHT my rich, red, extravagant mood is on me—the mood that hugs me when my Luxurious Self has come to make a slave of me. She is the lavish, gorgeous Self of me that hates with bitter hatred whatever is cold or barren or meagre. She will have nothing to do with mean economies or rigid self-denial.

She is a marvellous Self—marvellous in her capacity to feel and to enjoy; and she cannot and will not tolerate conditions that starve and hurt her. When she breaks loose from the chains with which I have bound her, she makes me pay for the days I have stinted her and punished her and forced her into subjection. She drives me and compels me and will not rest until I have satisfied all her madcap whims and extravagant demands.

Oh, she can make me do the wildest, most ridiculous things—things which, viewed afterward in the cold light of common sense, shock me with their recklessness. And yet, while she has control of me, these acts seems wholly reasonable, even necessary.

My Economical Self Weeps

To-day she kept me in a perfect whirl of actions that were the merest madness. She urged me to expenditures that made my Economical Self weep and wring her hands—poor Economical Self, hustled away and pushed into a corner and compelled to hold her peace!

She's a tyrant, a laughing, heartless tyrant, is my Luxurious Self, once she gains my hearing. No matter how I suffer for it afterward, she insists for that one time on having her own lavish, royal way. Nothing I can say or do will stop her!

To-day she began her reckless work by holding me spellbound before a gay shop window and pointing to the most tempting pair of crimson satin slippers that ever beckoned to the Luxurious Self of any girl.

"Aren't they just like you?" she exulted in my ear. "Couldn't they just have been made for you? And wouldn't they look lovely and feel comfy worn in your room on cold, drizzly evenings, when all the color and sparkle seem to have gone out of the world? Aren't they luscious, I say?"

And if you would believe it, not twenty minutes later, I was hurrying along my way with a precious parcel hugged against me and ecstasy bubbling within me! Oh, how my Economical Self raged and panted in the background! I could hear her hoarse whispers and knew she was straining against her chains.

"What lunacy!" she upbraided me, "when you can't afford a new hat and are wearing a suit that is three years behind the style. Do you realize what those slippers cost? Do you?"

When Life Is Life

But I only laughed, a laugh that gurgled up from delicious depths of me, for my Luxurious Self was pressing close beside me and her voice drowned the harsh tones of that other voice.

"You owe it to yourself," she urged, "you owe it to the Beauty Self in you. Life is not life when it is all self-denial, all economy, all pinched, gray, hopeless plodding.

"If you forever starve the luxurious selves of you, don't you know you'll grow grim and gray and harsh just like your thoughts? Why, your beauty brain cells will all dry up, I tell you! All that is rich and luscious in your nature will dry up and fade away!"

But that is not the only reckless thing she made me do to-day. She urged me to purchase two new covers for my sofa cushions—rich Oriental patterns that fairly took my breath away. And she made me buy flowers of the boy outside the subway station—crimson velvet roses, a heaping armful of them. For she knows how I worship flowers. She knows that if I had just one dollar left in the world and she were with me, I'd spend half for bread and half for roses!

After I got home she kept me fairly dancing to the tune of her swift commands. When dinner was over and my beloved parcels untied and my roses scattered about in vases, she sang to me: "Give yourself to me wholly—let me cradle you and rest you and delight you as never before. Relax, relax, dear child, and yield wholly to my power!"

Cinderella Dresses for Ball

Then she reminded me: "Don't you remember the beautiful lounging dress, all billows and billows of lace and silk and ribbons? Why not take it out and let its luxury caress and thrill you?

"Oh, not that!" I cried; "not Aunt Julia's gorgeous present. Why, I'm saving it to wear on some splendid occasion—some time far in the future. Oh, I couldn't!"

"Nonsense!" she flung back at me. "Do you mean to say you would starve the present to feed the future? It is now you need the nourishment of beauty and sheen and fragrance. I tell you, nothing is too beautiful or fine for you right now!"

So she had her way. Oh, it has been just like Cinderella getting ready for the ball! Never has any experience been so wildly sweet, so unreasonably, exquisitely happy!

So here I am, curled up among my heaps and heaps of cushions, all in my billows of creamy silk and lace and with those darling slippers glowing like live rubies on my feet. Never was anything more splendid!

There is something marvellous about the way my Luxurious Self can make me bask in such delights. I wonder if all women can yield to such enjoyment as I can yield? Luscious colors and fine fabrics feed my Beauty Self as bread feeds the body. Silk embraces me like an actual caress. Fragrance is like wine poured over my senses.

Don't Think with Brains Alone

We don't think with our brains alone. Mind spreads all over the body. Every nerve with me rejoices when I let my Luxurious Self have sway. Every fibre of me drinks up beauty. Every cell saturates itself with color and fragrance and warmth. My whole body stretches itself and yields and sighs with the rapture of it.

To-night I lean back among my cushions with half-closed, languorous eyes, and let the luxury overwhelm me with joy. The feel of it is like milk and honey poured upon me. I am drenched in the sweetness of it, drowned in its velvet flood.

And oh, the roses, the roses!

Advice on Points of Etiquette

By MARY HUTTON PELL

Member of the Four Hundred and an Authority on all social matters.

SIMPLE WEDDING OUTFIT

DEAR MRS. PELL—Will you kindly publish an inexpensive wedding outfit for a working girl? Also the necessary house furnishings she is to get. I will be thankful.

ANXIOUS.

IT would be wise for you to have a very simple wedding gown; possibly a pretty, dainty white frock that will do for a party gown the rest of the season. Or you might be married in your traveling gown, as many do, this being a tailor-made costume. In such instance a dressy waist and hat are required, with white gloves and patent leather shoes. Six each of lingerie garments, a dozen pairs of good stockings, and one other dress besides your wedding gown, will be all that you will require. In furnishing, the bride furnishes the household linens. As you do not say how many rooms you expect to have, it would be difficult to tell you what to get; but the bridegroom usually furnishes the home, the bride contributing the linens.

BRIDE FURNISHES LINENS

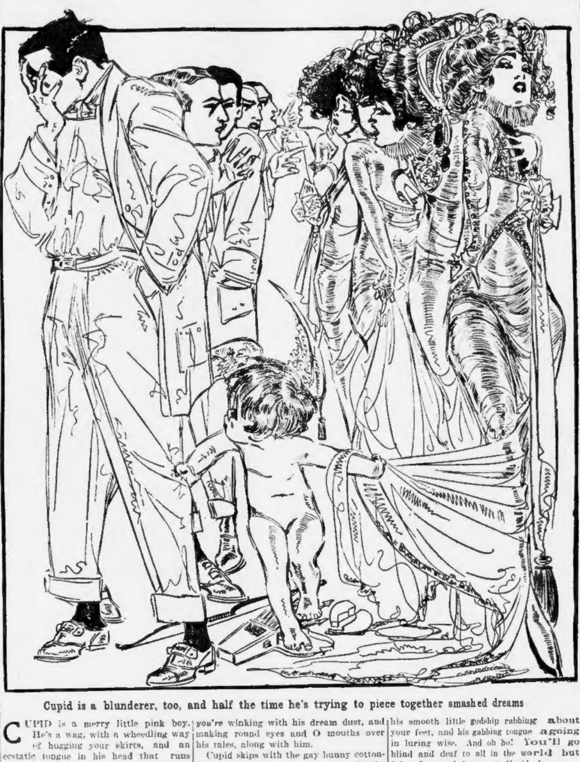
DEAR MRS. PELL—Will you kindly answer the following question through your column: Is it the custom, when a young lady is married, that she furnish the linen, sheets, etc., or not?

MADELINE B.

IT is usual for the bride to furnish all of the housekeeping linens.

THE MISTAKES OF CUPID

By NELL BRINKLEY



Cupid is a blunderer, too, and half the time he's trying to piece together smashed dreams

CUPID is a merry little pink boy. He's a wag, with a wheedling way of hugging your skirts, and an ecstatic tongue in his head that runs away with him and gabbles wondrous tales and fine to you. And he rounds his eyes and makes his mouth into an O at the finish of each tale, to make you understand how marvellous it is!

And he gets his own dream dust in his own eyes, so that he really can see nothing but the fairy floss of his reckless tongue's weaving.

And your askance eyes grow credulous, and you let your scornful hand slip down into his reaching, coaxing ones; and he crowds against you, and—by and by you're winking with his dream dust, and making round eyes and O mouths over his tales, along with him.

Cupid skips with the gay bunny cottontails and the sassy-faced coyotes in the Springtime; he wades the odorous fields and drinks scarlet-poppy dew in the Summer time; he prods and flounces through the pink-gold leaves and hops the feathery asters in the amber and blue Autumn, and he sleeps with the Snow-birds and stands on one leg, scrutching up the pitiful other foot, with a naughty wink of his off eye before your oaken door in the Winter time.

He's everywhere, always. And if you roam around with an unguarded smile on your face, in a little minute you'll have his smooth little godship rubbing about your feet, and his gabbing tongue agoing in luring wise. And oh ho! You'll go blind and deaf to all in the world but fairy floss and dreams as Cupid is.

He's a jolly little wag, and plenty of times his dream dust tales come true, and he loafs in the chimney corner at you and your man's "House of Love" till you die. But, oh me, oh my! He's a jolly little blunderer, too, and half his days he's stumbling over the bunny cotton-tails, and weeping among the poppies, and whipping off the heads of the smoky asters with his bow, and trying to figure out a way to piece together smashed dreams and make all "nice-nice" some horrible mixup he's made.

NELL BRINKLEY.

Advice to the Lovelorn---By Beatrice Fairfax

WRITE AND TELL HER

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been engaged to marry a young lady for the past five years. We have been the very best of friends; never had a misunderstanding in the entire five years of our engagement. When I proposed to the girl I was in a prosperous business, but within a year afterward I made a failure. Since then I have been unable to get on my feet to such an extent as to be able to marry. My little girl got tired of waiting, stating that she felt that she was wasting her time with me, so the engagement was broken and my engagement ring returned with other presents. We parted good friends under the circumstances, but she told me not to write as she wanted to forget the past. To-day I made a contract to travel for a salary of $3,000 per year, and in addition all expenses paid. I would like the little girl to know of my change in business. She lives out of the city. Under the circumstances would you advise me to write to her, or what shall I do?

M. J.

MOST certainly, write and tell her the good news, and if you still cared for her ask her to renew the engagement. You must not blame her for breaking the engagement, as five years is a long engagement and she cannot be blamed for being discouraged and feeling that the best years of her life were slipping away.

BETTER NOT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl and very fond of a gentleman that called at my home about a year ago. I have only met him once since then. I have heard through some of my friends that he thinks quite a good deal of me. Do you think it would be proper to write to him, asking him to call? I know all his family quite well. Do you think that would help me?

MELROSE.

I THINK that you had better wait until he shows greater signs of being interested in you before you invite him to call. If you know his people he has opportunities of meeting you, and if he is interested in you he will surely find means of doing so.

POOR LITTLE GIRL

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am eighteen years of age, and some time in August I was introduced to a young man around twenty-eight years of age. He has taken me out to several places of amusement, and also to his home and introduced me to his father, who think a great deal of me, as he says. This young man is very highly educated and is rather well-to-do. He called one evening at my home to take me out, so I went out with him, and he treated me as a perfect gentleman would do, and when we were saying good night he promised to write and let me know what evening he would be over. Well, up to the present time I have not heard from him. I don't know what could have happened. This young man is constantly in my mind, and I think of him from morn till night. No matter how hard I try to forget him, he still clings to my memory. I love him with all my heart, and can really and truthfully say another cannot take his place. I have no desire to live now without him, for he was my life, my all. Sometimes, as I pass his neighborhood, I see him, but he does not see me and I feel as though I could gather my courage together and speak to him, and yet I do not want him to be under the impression that I am running after him. Now, what shall I do?

HEARTBROKEN E.

MY poor little girl, I wish that I could say something to comfort you, but I really do not see that you can do anything. That is the hard part of being a woman. There is nothing to do but accept man's neglect and unkindness without outcry. At least, you have the comfort of knowing that you have not run after him in any way. It may be that you have unconsciously offended him in some way. Do not fret. A man that behaves as he has is not worth spoiling your life for.

Just for the Fun of It

IT was fair time in Selkirk, and Sandy and his sweetheart were wandering round arm in arm enjoying the sights. Presently they espied a smart looking pie shop, which they promptly entered. Sandy ordered one pie, sat down and commenced to eat it. Meanwhile the girl looked shyly on.

"Is't fine, Sandy?" she timidly asked.

"Ay, 'tis awful fine, Jennie," he answered. "Ye should buy one."—Penny Pictorial.

The Manicure Lady

Her Latest Fad Is for Literature That Is Uplifting

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"DID you ever read many of Mister Poe's stories, George?" asked the Manicure Lady.

"Some of 'em," said the Head Barber. "Let's see, what paper is he on?"

"He ain't on no paper; he's dead," said the Manicure Lady. "But I think he is just the dearest writer that I have ever saw in print. Between you and I, George, he's in a class by himself.

"I never knew he had been on earth till yesterday, when Wilfred comes along with one of his books entitled 'Tales of Mystery,' and tells me what a big leaguer Mr. Poe is. So I set down in the living room, after having came home from the Show Girls' ball—which was a awful bust, by the way—and I starts reading some of them tales.

"Honest to goodness, George, they gave me the Willies! He musta been a terrible drinker, or else he was there with the coke.

She Liked "The Black Cat"

"One of them stories was called 'The Black Cat.' It was a perfectly lovely affair, that yarn. It was all about a dear old man that stuck a penknife into his cat's eye, and afterward hanged the cat on a clothes line.

"Then this dear old gent killed his wife with an axe and buried her behind the cellar wall. When the cops came to look over the building, the old gent tapped the cellar wall with his cane, and another cat began to yowl.

"The cops tore down the wall, and there was his wife. Then the cops took him to jail. Oh, it was some story!"

"You oughtn't to read them wild yarns," declared the Head Barber. "Young girls which is just budding into womanhood ought to read stories by Bertha Clay, such as 'Wife in Name Only,' and poems like 'The Lady of the Lake.'"

"Young ladies which is just budding into womanhood has read all them things long ago," said the Manicure Lady. "Wilfred says that it is a liberal education to read Mister Poe, and Wilfred sure ought to know, because the only education he ever had was a liberal one, which was gave to him by a generous old uncle that didn't try to beat down the business college. I like Mister Poe's stuff, anyhow; it's so hard to believe.

Verse as Good as George Cohan's

"I was reading one of his poems, too. It was about a girl named Annabel Lee, and it jingled just as cute, like one of George Cohan's songs. Another one was about a crow, a big black crow that came into his house and sat on a bust of Pallas, whatever that is.

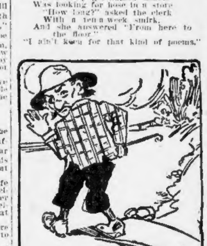
"Mister Poe asked the crow to go, but the crow said something like this: 'Mister Poe, although you know that I should go I must step slow, yours, Old Black Joe.' It was a awful sad poem, George. I cried when I read it."

"It ain't none of my business what you read," said the Head Barber, "but from what you tell me about this guy's dope I don't think he is a fit author for any of you young suffragettes. Girls that has everything to live for, like you and Trixie Friganza, oughtn't to take such gloomy views of life.

"If you want to read poems, why don't you read some of them limericks that you find in the comic papers? Limericks makes you cheerful. Here's one I seen the other day:

"'A willowy gal named Lenore
Was looking for hose in a store.
"How long?" asked the clerk
With a ten a week smirk.
And she answered "From here to the floor."'

"I ain't keen for that kind of poems,"



After the old gent crossed the moat.

said the manicure Lady. "What I like most is them stately lines, like 'Roll on, you dark and deep old ocean, roll,' or 'He sank beneath them stormy waves and never rose no more.'

Why Read, Unless It Uplifts You?

"It ain't much use reading, George, if you can't read something that lifts you out of your low environments into the lofty Adirondacks of thought.

"If you ain't read much of Mister Poe's dope you better get busy. Wilfred says it makes a man have a wider scope, whatever that is, and he is trying to get the old gent to read it.

"Last night the old gent read part of 'The Fall of the House of Usher,' and when he came home this morning he fell so hard on the first stairway that I thought the house was going to drop into the moat.

"If there had been a moat, I reckon, that might have come to pass. But I musn't knock father, George. The dear old gent means well. Here comes a female impersonator to have his nails did."

Turkey Weighed 16 Pounds

Solution and Prize Awards for Mrs. Jones's Puzzle

CONCERNING Guggelheim's two turkeys, which together weighed 20 pounds, a great many puzzleists have proved that the larger bird weighed 16 pounds and the smaller 4 pounds. Mrs. Smith paid 82 cents for the small one at the rate of 20½ cents per pound, and Mrs. Brown paid $2.96 for the gobbler, at the rate of 18½ cents per pound.

The solution may be found by the following method, employing one unknown quantity:

Let X equal the weight of the small turkey. Then 20—X equals the weight of the large bird. It was told that the small turkey cost 2 cents per pound more than the large one, so the following equation results:

82 divided by X equals 296 divided by 20—X plus 2.

The value of X is found to be 4 and the weight of the large turkey, 20—X, equals 16.

The one hundred puzzle books for correct answers, best explained, are awarded to the following solvers:

Tomorrow's Best Bargains

Money-Savers for Thrifty Shoppers Selected by an Expert

LADIES' NIGHT GOWNS of white flannelette are very much in demand this season, and if you would like to purchase a supply at a bargain, shop on the second floor of Shepard Norwell's Thursday. They have arranged to sell to readers of this column their regular $1 gown, made from chic flannelette at 65 cents for one day. These gowns are cut large, and are made with double yoke back and front. The material is soft and fleecy, making a most desirable gown for cold weather.

A MISSION WOOD SMOKING STAND would make a most useful gift for the men and just the thing will be found on sale in the furniture department of Henry Siegel's to-morrow at a reduced price. Two styles, one made with square and the other with a round top, having two shelves with a brass ash tray, match box and cigar holder, that have never sold less than 2.25, will be marked for one day only to $1.75 each. These are a bargain, and after Thursday will be marked back to their original price.

IN THE BASEMENT AT JORDAN Marsh's to-morrow, a serving tray of Carpathian silver that has never sold for less than 85 cents will be marked to 49 cents each as a "special" for readers of this column. It is made eighteen inches long by thirteen inches wide in handsome chased pattern of bright finish that is warranted not to change color. This price is unusually low and is positively for one day only.

A RARE OPPORTUNITY TO purchase a beautiful dressy waist at a bargain will be offered to call customers at Vinson's Women's Toggery Shop, No. 501 Washington street. An odd lot of handsome models in various styles, made from imported messalines, chiffons and laces that have been priced especially low at $10 and $15 will all be marked to $5 each. Here is an excellent chance to secure a remarkable value if you shop early. Every waist is beautifully made of the finest material in an assortment of the pastel shades and all are elaborately trimmed with rich laces. Sizes range from 36 to 42.

FOR EARLY XMAS SHOPPERS wishing to purchase a handsome doll, all dressed, the James A. Houston Company have arranged a special sale on Thursday for 19 cents that are remarkable values. A twelve and fourteen-inch doll with handsome curly wig and closing eyes, dressed in red, light blue, pink or white, with large hat, yoke dress and slippers and stockings to match, will be offered at this low price for one day. A rare opportunity.

A Statement from Dr. Scott

We Are Very Glad to Know That a Teacher in an Important School Was "MISQUOTED" and Not MISINFORMED

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

The newspapers of Boston, New York and other cities some time ago printed a report of an alleged speech by Colin A. Scott, Ph. D., head of the Boston Normal School. In this speech Dr. Scott was made to express the belief that a woman over thirty years of age is unfit to be a teacher. Reasons given were reproduced in this newspaper and commented upon. The comment that we made still stands with reference to anybody who might have opinions such as those attributed to Dr. Scott.

We are glad to learn from Dr. Scott, however, that the opinions were not his at all, but only quoted by him from another source. In a letter recently received from Dr. Scott, in response to a request for a copy of his book on "SOCIAL EDUCATION," Dr. Scott writes:

> "I have asked my publisher to send you a copy of my book on Social Education. I think that the book expresses ideas in education which are quite harmonious with many of the statements which I am accustomed to find in your editorials, and I hope that you will find it of some value."

In regard to the statements attributed to him in various newspapers, in which he was made to express the opinion that women were unfit as teachers after thirty years of age, Dr. Scott writes as follows, and we gladly print his statement:

> "The statement that teachers should be married before they are thirty, failing which they should be dropped from the profession, was not an expression of my own ideas at all, but was introduced as a quotation from a recent magazine writer (Popular Science Monthly, November, 1908) as a distinctly humorous proposition. I am sure that my audience understood this as a joke, which was brought in merely for the purpose of lightening the serious tenor of the address. It would be impossible for me to make such a remark seriously, because it is entirely at variance with my opinions.
> "The only reason for bringing in marriage at all in this talk was the fact that I was trying to explain to my audience something of the economic conditions of the teacher's profession.
>
> "In my opinion the difference in the respective salaries of men and women is due largely to the fact that men look forward to the duty of supporting a family, and refuse to accept a wage which will not enable them to do so. Partly for this reason, if they intend to teach for life, they prepare for it more elaborately than women are usually prepared. The result of this, along with the natural adaptability of women to younger children, leaves the teaching of the grades mainly in the hands of women. For these positions women are not in competition with men, but have practically the whole of the branch of the profession to themselves. I stated my belief that they should be much better paid, but said this was a question between them and the public, which needs to be convinced of the present really high value of their services.
>
> "I also said that I believed it would be a good thing to have more married teachers, either men or women, in the grades, although I distinctly stated that many of our best teachers were unmarried, and I believed that for certain individuals this was the most natural and human condition for them.
>
> "Such individuals, therefore, would not be and could not be disappointed in the deepest interests of their lives.
>
> "My whole thought, which was a sufficiently sober and serious one, was that the schools should have the benefit of all kinds of large-minded and full-orbed human individuals as guides and patterns to the young."

We are glad to know that Dr. Scott looks upon the statement that women over thirty should not teach children "as a distinctly humorous proposition." It is humorous and even worse than humorous. It seemed impossible, and we are glad to know that it was impossible that a trained teacher should fail to appreciate the value of devoted, earnest women in the prime of their ability.

We are glad especially to indorse Dr. Scott's opinion that the women who teach should be better paid. They ought to be better paid. There is an excellent suggestion in his statement that this question of better pay is "a question between them (the teachers) and the public, which needs to be convinced of the present really high value of their services."

The public is convinced of the value of the services rendered both by the men and women that teach. The public is convinced that it is great injustice to pay women less than men, WHEN THE WOMEN DO WORK AS IMPORTANT AND AS DIFFICULT.

Both men and women should be better paid. It is a shame, a disgrace, and, unfortunately, A FACT, that in public buildings there are men better paid for cleaning out spittoons than the women in schools are paid to teach the children. One step in the right direction will be GIVING THE VOTE TO THE WOMEN. For it isn't enough to convince the public. Women have got to convince the bosses, the politicians, the men with no conscience at all, AND THE VOTES OF A FEW MILLIONS OF WOMEN WOULD DO A GREAT DEAL OF CONVINCING.

Hints for Christmas

By Wex Jones

Do your shopping early; as early as you can borrow the money.

• • •

There is no gift like one made by the giver. Fortunately for the recipient.

• • •

• • •

A charming gift is a home-made pie or piano. Any of your friends will tell you how to make the pie. To make the piano all that is needed is 150 feet of mahogany, ten bales of wire, one elephant's tusk for notes and twenty years of experience. Fix up the notes and wire in the mahogany, have it tuned—if possible—and send it to your friend. The shipping charges are the most expensive thing about it, and may be avoided if you have sufficient strength to use a wheelbarrow.

This gift will be especially appreciated by any person needing kindling for the Winter.

• • •

A beautiful painting can be made if you have the right water colors. After obtaining the colors, study for ten years in some art school, and you may be ready to delight your friends.

• • •

In buying diamonds, be careful to have them screened. Otherwise you may find a number of small ones among your purchases.

• • •

There is no message of love or affection which cannot be conveyed by means of a book, says somebody or other. This is stretching things a bit, but it is more or less true in essentials.

Be careful to suit your book to your friend. For instance, do not give a light friend a heavy book, nor a dear friend a cheap book. A heavy book would tax the strength of a light friend. Forthermore, do not present a book in brown binding to any one whose library is decorated in green.

• • •

If you have a deaf friend, the problem of a gift is easy. Send him a phonograph.

• • •

To a friend who does not read it is safe to send one of the latest novels by a woman author.

• • •

A carpet sweeper is a pleasing gift to a bachelor. He will not use it and consequently it will remain as good as new for an indefinite time.

• • •

As a rule, it is better to pick out something that will be useful to the recipient. A Morris chair is always useful, and can easily be made by any one who is a trained carpenter. Buy a Morris chair at any store. Get the necessary material, and copy it as closely as you can. Then send your friend the one you bought. The other will be useful in your own house for lighting fires, etc.

• • •

A subscription to the Commoner is a pleasing gift to any Republican.

• • •

To make an automobile at home, go out and earn $20,000. Then give it to an experienced friend to buy a good one for you.

• • •

The pleasantest gift you can give is a blank check. Of course, your friend may be disappointed when he presents it, but that will be after Christmas.

What Is Right Living?

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

WHAT is right living? Just to do your best
When Worst seems easier. To bear the ills
Of daily life with patient cheerfulness,
Nor waste dear time recounting them.
To talk
Of hopeful things when doubt is in the air,
To count your blessings often, giving thanks,
And to accept your sorrows silently,
Nor question why you suffer. To accept
The whole of life as one perfected plan,
And welcome each event as part of it,
To work, and love your work; to trust, to pray
For larger usefulness and clearer sight,
This is right living, pleasing in God's eyes,
Though you be heathen, heretic or Jew.

A Little Red Cross Stamp

A New Way to Help "Stamp Out" the White Plague

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

A LITTLE red and white penny stamp about the size of a two-cent government stamp, with "Merry Christmas" and a red cross among holly leaves upon it—this hardly seems like a promising agent to use against tuberculosis. It cannot even carry a letter. How can it rouse public interest and raise funds?

Well, it can. It has—and the story of its start is worth telling to all those interested in tuberculosis work.

The Christmas stamp, in America, started in Delaware. But before that there was a Christmas stamp in Denmark, issued by the government, sold through the post offices, and with the king's head and Jul upon it—the same as our Anglo-Saxon Yule. Jacob A. Riis wrote an article about this stamp in the Outlook of July 6, 1908, and urged its adoption in America. In Denmark its annual sale has built and financed a hospital for tuberculous children.

The Red Cross Society of Delaware, with the approval of the National Red Cross, decided to try this Danish idea last Christmas. The Postmaster-General was asked for leave to sell it in the postoffices of Delaware. But American postal law is different from that in Denmark. Permission could not be given. The Red Cross was obliged to plan a different way of reaching the public, though the postal authorities were encouragingly friendly to the scheme, and put no obstacles in the way.

One hundred thousand were printed, but that was not enough. Two hundred thousand followed, the presses running day and night, for Christmas was now close ahead. In the short space of that eighteen-day campaign nearly four hundred thousand Christmas stamps were sold, and nearly three thousand dollars of clear profit resulted. The stamp had proved its possibilities, even in so short a space and so conservative a section.

With the money a big anti-tuberculosis exhibit was brought to Delaware, and visited by 20,000 people in ten days. The dispensary was equipped, and it has been running ever since most successfully. A nurse was given to the sanatorium, and a thousand dollars set aside as a nucleus of a fund for a better hospital.

The National Red Cross has now taken up, formally, the Christmas stamp. Designed by Howard Pyle, printed in three colors by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and issued by the National Red Cross, the stamp will be offered for sale in every State this Christmas season. It can be procured in any quantity from the Red Cross headquarters in any State, or the central one in Washington, for cash only, at one penny for each stamp.

The Christmas stamp is not good for postage. It will not carry any kind of mail, but any kind of mail will carry it. Each one who uses this holiday stamp will help to "stamp out the white plague." It has been printed this time by the million to supply the demand, so any quantity can be ordered, but cash must be sent with each order, this rule having been followed last year with success. Nobody makes any profit on the Christmas stamp, but it was found last Christmas that every one was glad to help it along on these terms. For an order of one stamp or a thousand the price is the same, except in the little books, which add the cost of the binding, just as the Government does. The proceeds in each State go toward tuberculosis work in that State.

During the run of the stamp last year, Jacob Riis wrote a congratulatory letter to the Delaware Red Cross, and Governor Stuart of Pennsylvania, and Secretary Root and Secretary Taft all telegraphed their approval and good wishes. This year the stamp goes forward to a wider usefulness. Its value will be two-fold. It educates and arouses. It gives each one a chance to contribute, if only a penny, to the war against the White Plague, and provides a fund for needed work. If little Delaware made it succeed, any other State, North or South, can do so. The National Red Cross brings this Christmas stamp to the whole nation this year. If each American man, woman and child buys but one, over eighty-five millions will be sold and tuberculosis work from Maine to California will be reinforced and urged forward. When Denmark has succeeded, can America fail?

This is a work in which every one can aid to the extent of one penny at least. Send your nickel, dime or dollar to Massachusetts Branch Red Cross, No. 4 Joy street, Boston.
